PLOT NETS $2000 AS 1 HELD

Alleged Fur Conspiracy Is Revealed as Hunt On for Two Other Suspects

YOUNG WOMEN FREED AFTER POLICE QUIZ

Man In Custody Is Himself Victim of 'Double Cross' Is Officers' Theory

With Ray Stillings, 26, of Santa Ana, held prisoner in the county jail on suspicion of complicity in one of the most remarkable criminal plots that has come to the attention of the local police, search was spread throughout Southern California today for two other men, believed to be members of an organized bandit ring, who escaped with loot valued at $2,100 in a spectacular fur robbery here Saturday.

Stillings appears to have been himself a victim of the robbery to the extent of $350, but the police incline to the belief that this fact formed only one of the intricate ramifications of the plot which centered about the alleged luring of three Los Angeles fur salesmen to a house on South Lyon street, where the robbery was staged.

Stillings, acting as decoy for the salesmen, carried out the ruse by submitting with them to the robbery started by his confederates, is the police theory. Purs valued at $1,200, $369 in money, including that of Stillings, $75 in checks, and a Ford car, belonging to H. L. Copson, local automobile liverrman, formed the loot.

Incidentally, two attractive young women, who reside in the house on Lyon street, were temporarily taken into custody by the police on suspicion that they might have been connected with the plot. However, after being held in the county jail until Sunday, they were released as not being connected with the robbery. Their names were withheld by the police, who merely gave the information that one was a divorcee, aged 23, and the other a girl of 21.

Seek Delhi Man
Jack Ferguson, proprietor of a billiard hall at Delhi, and reported to be an ex-pugilist, is one of the two men sought by the police for the robbery, the name of his companion in the hold-up not being learned. The three Los Angeles fur salesmen alleged to have been victimized were Louis Barron, 318 West Eighth street, L. B. Nichols, 1766 LaBrea avenue, and Albert Silver, chauffeur, 720 South Grand street, all representing the Marcell Fur store, of 318 West Eighth, Los Angeles.

That the young divorcee was an innocent pawn in the plot of the three men, was indicated. The gift to her of a fur sealskin coat, proposed by Stillings, formed the alleged ruse which drew the fur salesmen to her house to keep an appointment with Stillings for a fitting of the coat.

In the midst of the fitting, Ferguson and the third man described as tall and slender, suddenly appeared Industrial alcohol is obtainable wholesale by anybody at 35 cents a gallon. Atkins claimed that the chemical process precipitates all the poison but leaves a sufficient trace of it to ultimately poison the consumer to death.

Jealousy Causes Split Among Europe's Leading Latin Folk

BY JOHN DE GANDT (United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Jan. 23.—That the Latin European bloc is cracking and that at least three of its largest parts are on the verge of diverging, each in its own direction, is the opinion prevailing French official circles. These parts are France, Italy and Spain.

The main reason given here for such situation is that for a long time jealousy against "the big sister" has existed both in Italy and Spain, where it would be hard nowadays to find somebody who would still admit France the first of the Latin nations.

"Jealousy," the French say, "because of local difficulties in those countries, of which we cannot be held responsible, bolshevism and facism in Italy, the Moroccan war and a very bad economic situation in Spain, is to blame for the discord. Many Italians think we have forgotten the Italian help during the Great War was really effective. Numerous Spaniards believe France secretly wishes the Spaniards to lose their African war against the Moors."

PROSECUTION IN ARBUCKLE CASE MAY COME TO END TODAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle's bed room door and a scientific detective held the center of interest in Arbuckle's manslaughter trial today.

The door of the room in the St. Francis hotel where Virginia Rappe is alleged to have received at the hands of Arbuckle the injuries from which she died was set up in court as an exhibit and E. O. Heinrichs, finger print expert and criminologist, discoursed on the story the door was supposed to tell.

Heinrichs pointed out to the jury fingerprints of a man and woman alleged to be those of Arbuckle and the dead girl. The prints he claimed, were so placed as to indicate that Arbuckle had forced the girl's hand away from the door.

His direct testimony was brief. His cross examination was lengthy and detailed.

By M. D. TRACY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—With only the testimony of a half dozen minor witnesses remaining to be heard, the state expects to close its case against Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle late today.

It is probable that the defense will not open until Tuesday morning. The case for the defense, according to Gavin McNab, Arbuckle's chief counsel, will contain no surprises. A few new witnesses will take the stand, but their testimony will only deal with minor points, he said.

Arbuckle himself will probably testify either Wednesday or Thursday.

The case is expected to go to the jury either at the end of this week or early next week.

"30" BULLETINS

A. W. McPherson and J. Clem Arnold, neighboring ranchers at La Habra, had today settled out of court their difficulties over alleged damage to the former's ranch.

McPherson, who sued for $9,900 damages, claiming that his land, trees and crops were damaged by waste irrigation water from Arnold's place, settled for $250, according to a statement of counsel in filing stipulation in the superior court today that the action should be dismissed.

Miss Nora Hooser, 19, of Patterson Way, Fullerton, died yesterday morning at the Fullerton hospital, after a brief illness. The deceased is survived by her parents, three sisters and two brothers. Funeral services will be held next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at Angus McAuley's chapel in Fullerton, interment to be made in Loma Vista cemetery.

Coincident to learning the identity of Jack Ferguson's alleged accomplice in the $2,100 robbery of three Los Angeles fur salesmen in a house on Lyon street here Saturday, City Marshal Jernigan this afternoon was informed that the Ford car driven by Ferguson and his companion, J. R. Parsons, of San Francisco, had been found at Balboa. City Marshal J. A. Porter, of Newport Beach, recovered the car last night, identifying it as the property of H. L. Copson, Santa Ana auto liverrman, who rented the machine to Ferguson and Parsons. It was found last night, the two bandits having abandoned it, taking the furs and other loot with them.

Three Cardinals Mentioned As Successors To Benedict

ROME, Jan. 23.—Three cardinals were named by political and ecclesiastical authorities today, as most likely successors to Pope Benedict XV. They were Maffi of Pisa, Gasparri, the cardinal camerlengo, and Merry Del Val, who was to have been camerlengo before he withdrew.

Cardinal Maffi was considered by many the most logical candidate, because at the time of Benedict's election he received the highest vote on the first few ballots.

Cardinal Gasparri, who has been papal secretary of state and who now holds the pontifical authority temporarily vested in the cardinal camerlengo was fully as strong a possibility, in the public mind.

The sacred college will convene February 2 to elect Benedict's successor.

JAPS BALKING OVER PLAN TO WITHDRAW ARMY FROM SIBERIA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Japan stands ready to withdraw her troops from Siberia, Japanese delegates informed the Far Eastern conference today. The delegates, however, set no date for evacuation.

At the same time the Japanese avowed that they have no intention of violating, in any way, the integrity of Russia. The delegates followed the lines laid down by Count Uchida in his talk at Tokyo, when he declared the Japanese could not at the moment quit Siberia, but are willing to do so ultimately.

The removal, promised by the delegation here, will not take place immediately but the assurances were such that it is doubted Japan will overstep her pledge subsequently.

By CARL D. GROAT (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Siberia and Shantung will be the big problems of the Far Eastern conference this week with prospect that both will be amicably disposed of in short time.

The Siberian action will probably be governed by Japan's objection against immediate withdrawal of troops from Siberia.

Supervisors Put Ban on Shipping Of Frozen Fruit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—The Los Angeles county board of supervisors today took steps to prohibit the transportation of frozen fruit, following the recent spell of freezing weather in the citrus belt.

An emergency ordinance, sponsoring by the California Fruit Growers' exchange, was enacted to meet the situation.

The ordinance provides that if 15 per cent of a box of oranges is 20 per cent frozen, the box shall come under the definition of frozen fruit and the shipper is liable to a fine of $500, six months in jail, or both.

An orange was defined as frozen when two or more slices have been affected by the frost.

LAST WISHES OF POPE BENEDICT CAUSE CHANGE IN CEREMONY

By HENRY WOOD (United Press Staff Correspondent)

ROME, Jan. 23.—The burial of Pope Benedict XV with solemn ceremony which will extend over a period of ten days, began this afternoon.

The actual interment of the late pontiff, which was to have taken place at 5 o'clock was postponed. The body of the late pontiff, which lay in state in the sacrament chapel for a brief while today, was to be placed in the first of three coffins in which it will finally be interred and tonight will rest in the vault of St. Peter's.

Thousands had passed the grilled doors of the sacrament chapel and kissed the foot of the dead pontiff since 9 o'clock.

Late this afternoon the doors of St. Peter's were closed to permit the actual burial service to begin.

Body Not Embalmed

Much of the ages-old ceremonies in connection with the death of the supreme pontiff of the Catholic church had to be abandoned in accordance with the death of a pontiff.

The pope's body was not embalmed and the ceremonies of lying in state had to be considerably curtailed.

Two days' mourning with flags throughout Italy at half mast and all amusement places closed, ordered for the first time in the history of federated Italian government, began today.

Nine days official mourning for Pope Benedict begins today and the conclave of cardinals, which will elect a successor has been summoned for February 2.

Pope Benedict's request that his body be not embalmed, upset much of the traditional ceremony connected with the death of a pontiff.

Thousands Disappointed

Thousands who might have taken part in the customary ceremony of kissing the pope's feet were disappointed, although other thousands were enabled to make their obeisance as the dead pontiff lay for a while in the sacrament chapel.

About 9 o'clock this morning the impressive ceremony of removing the pope's body from the vatican throne room to St. Peter's began.

A procession formed in one of the large halls of the vatican headed by a detachment of the noble guards. After the guards came Cardinal Gasparri, and the dean. Members of the Sacred college followed, walking two by two, and after them came the vatican prelate, private chamberlain of Pope Benedict, chamberlains of the cape and sword, heads of various religious orders and functionaries of the vatican generally.

In White Robes

Chair bearers of the pontiff carried out the body which was dressed in the white robes familiar to all who have received an audience at the vatican. The body lay on a bier, covered with a huge red silken shroud, which, as the procession started again, was raised on poles and carried as a canopy over the bier.

The burial this afternoon will be in the nature of a temporary interment until a tomb shall have been prepared in the church chosen by Pope Benedict for his final resting place.

The sacred college held the first of its daily sessions this morning. These sessions will continue until after the funeral of the pope and up to February 2, when the conclave for election of a new pope will be held.

61 In Sacred College

Owing to numerous vacancies, on account of recent deaths, which Pope Benedict had planned to fill at the March consistory, the Sacred college, which will meet to elect a new pontiff, is now composed of only sixty-one members. Thirty-one of these are Italians, two Americans and one Canadian. The latter three were not expected to reach Rome in time for the opening of the conclave, when the cardinals will be walled up.

The wall may later be torn down to admit them, however, if they arrive before the election is determined.

The Sacred college met early today in the Hall of Paraments in the vatican. The dean of the colleges presided. Owing to several cardinals from outside Rome having been warned of the approach of the pope's demise, many who would not otherwise have been present at the first sessions, were on hand. Others will arrive daily.

The papal bull of Clement XII, issued in 1723, was read.

SOLON URGES U. S. NOT TO BE SHYLOCK

Charges Demand For Payment of Foreign Debt Will Crush World Into Early Bankruptcy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—If the United States demands payment of her foreign debt she will crush the world into immediate bankruptcy, Senator McCumber, chairman of the finance committee, declared in opening debate on the foreign debt refunding bill in the senate today.

"We either fought a war for humanity—or we didn't," McCumber said, "if we did let us remember that our allies went through three years of hell before we got into it."

"Then, for God's sake, let us not play the role of Shylock," he said.

"I don't think there is a government owing us who can pay its interest today," McCumber said.

The last negotiations with foreign countries regarding the debt was conducted under the Wilson administration, McCumber said. No official negotiations have been made under the present administration he said.

Senator Hitchcock, Nebraska, interrupted McCumber frequently, claiming the secretary of the treasury already had the right to handle the interest question in the same manner the new commission could.

McCumber said the treasury did not have this power and that the appointment of the commission was necessary to straighten out the tangled situation, "in which every country seems to owe everybody."

MYSTERY MAN'S DEATH DUE TO ASPHYXIATION, VERDICT GIVEN TODAY

Accidental asphyxiation was the verdict rendered this morning by a jury impaneled by County Coroner Charles D. Brown to hold an inquest over the body of John E. Link, 60, found dead last Saturday in his room at the Evans hotel at Placencia. The inquest was held at the Angus McAuley undertaking parlors in Fullerton where the body had been taken.

Funeral services will be held at the McAuley chapel tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, the Rev. E. J. Statom, of Fullerton, to officiate. Interment will be made in Loma Vista cemetery.

Little is known of Link's affairs as it developed at the inquest that he had not received mail at Placencia during the last few days of his residence there. For a while he had been employed by Mrs. Mary Strain, and later worked for Sam Newnes in the latter's store at Placencia.

Former S. F. Man Kills Wife, Child as Funds Run Low, Claim

United Press Leased Wire
CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Patrick Tierney, half frozen after walking the streets all night, staggered into police headquarters early today and asked for lodging. He was arrested and charged with the brutal murder of his wife and three-year-old son.

Tierney confessed, police said, that he had killed his family. "I had only eighty cents and no job," he said.

"I couldn't see the wife and baby starve. So I bought a hatchet with the money and killed them."

Tierney said he walked the streets all day and night after the murder trying to beg twenty-five cents.

"I wanted the money to buy poison," he said. "I wanted to die. No one would give me a quarter, so here I am."

The mutilated bodies of Tierney's wife and child were discovered by their landlord yesterday.

Farm Conference Given Harding Program for System of Relief

CO-OPERATIVE PLAN IS GIVEN APPROVAL

Favors Wide Development of Resources Through Reclamation

By JAMES T. KOLBERT (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—President Harding, opening the National agriculture conference here today, outlined a comprehensive program for meeting "the grim reality of the present crisis in agriculture."

Warning that if the nation fails to aid the farmer it will precipitate a disaster that will affect every industrial and commercial activity, the president made several specific recommendations to the 325 leaders of agriculture and related lines here for the conference.

These were:

- 1.—Extension of farmers co-operative marketing organizations, Harding endorsed, indirectly, legislation now pending in congress to exempt these organizations from the working of the anti-trust laws, long held to be one of the principal barriers to their growth.

- 2.—Provision must be made for much greater "working capital" for the farmers.

- 3.—The government must place more essential and scientific information at the disposal of the farmers and their marketing organizations.

- 4.—To aid both the farmer and consumer, measures must be taken to prevent violent price fluctuations which result "from unorganized and haphazard production."

- 5.—The farmers will be benefitted by far seeing and wise transportation policies. In this connection the president recommended a greater use of waterways and suggested that eventually nearly all of the railroads of the country be electrified. He also risked arousing the ire of Eastern Republicans by giving unqualified endorsement to the Great Lakes waterway project, recently framed by the International joint commission, which would enable ocean liners to dock at Great Lakes ports.

- 6.—The fullest development of national resources through increased reclamation of arid cut over and swamp lands.

- 7.—The nation must obtain a new conception of the farmers' place "in our social and economic scheme" and must realize that the farmer of today is a combination of the expert scientist, the business man and the worker.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announced the selection of Representative Sydney Anderson, Minnesota, chairman of the joint congressional committee on agricultural inquiry, as permanent chairman of the conference.

President Harding's address in part follows:

URGES WAR TO KEEP LOWER FARES

MIGHTY PROTEST AT R. BOARD QUIZ ON P. E. RATES NEAR

Santa Ana and Orange residents should attend the hearing before the state railroad commission in Los Angeles, February 24, on the protest of Hollywood and other cities in the vicinity of Los Angeles against the recent changes in rates ordered on the Pacific Electric, according to J. C. Metzgar, secretary of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, today.

In the new schedules Santa Ana benefited by reduced rates between here and Los Angeles. The commission based new rates on mileage, which, in the opinion of Metzgar, is the fair method of establishing transportation charges.

The new system resulted in an increase in the fares to Hollywood and the other protesting cities, whose residents seek to have the old rate restored. If they are successful, fares on the Santa Ana branch will be placed where they were before the recent decrease.

"Those who have anything worth while that they can present to the commission in support of maintenance of the new schedule should attend the hearing," said Metzgar. "The mileage basis is the correct principle. We have been helping to make up deficits on other lines operated by the Pacific Electric. I do not think it is fair, and we should fight to have the present schedule retained."

$3000 DAMAGE CASE TRANSFERRED HERE

Brought to Orange county on change of venue from Los Angeles county, a $3,000 damage suit was filed in superior court here this afternoon by Marshal S. Borden, of Los Angeles, against John B. Allison.

Borden's suit is based upon an alleged violation of an agreement by Allison to lease to Borden a building at Newport Beach to be used as a moving picture theater.

At the time the agreement was reached, Allison asserts, the building was under construction. Before its completion, however, Borden refused to carry out the agreement, Allison maintained.

White Suggests Projects Declared Essential To Development of City

Ascertainment of whether the city should have a large public park or a number of small parks; establishment of an industrial zone; the building of a civic auditorium; and the accumulation of funds for a Chamber of Commerce building to be erected when there are 2000 members in the organization, were among the suggestions that E. A. White, prominent fruit shipper and booster, made today to Secretary J. C. Metzgar of the Chamber of Commerce.

The suggestions were made in response to the question, propounded in the Chamber of Commerce Bulletin recently: "What should the Chamber of Commerce undertake for the community as a whole during the year?"

COMPLAINT ALLEGING ILLEGAL COMMISSION IN THIRD APPEARANCE

Suit of Wester and Young, La Habra realty firm, against B. F. Pinson and H. Delmar Thurber, Fullerton realty firm, involving dispute over a $1000 commission, made its third appearance in superior court here this afternoon in the form of a second amended complaint.

The La Habra realtors declare that at the instance of the defendants they secured purchasers for a five-acre citrus and oil ranch at Richfield belonging to J. J. Lilley.

The defendants, the La Habrans declare, collected from Lilley a commission of $1,000, which is claimed by the plaintiffs.

The purchasers of the property, which the plaintiffs claim to have found, were O. E. Hensley, E. N. Dunbar, John Leuhm, R. F. Frantz and L. J. Wester, the last named being one of the plaintiffs.

WOMAN DIDN'T FAINT BUT CALLED OFFICERS WHO JAILED SUSPECT

Mrs. J. F. Parsons, 411 South Main, didn't faint this afternoon when she walked from the rear to the front door of her home and found a man intruding through the front door. She telephoned the officers—result, a man giving the name of George Wilson this afternoon is in jail booked on suspicion.

Officers Stewart, Elliott and Bates responded to the call and when they arrived at the Parsons home the man had disappeared. While Stewart stopped to get a good description of him from Mrs. Parsons, Elliott and Bates searched the neighborhood and finally came upon Wilson in the front yard of a residence on East Chestnut.

The man was in the yard drinking water from a hydrant extending from the porch. He told Mrs. Parsons he was looking for a family by the name of Wilson. He could give no satisfactory answer to the officers for his being in the neighborhood under the circumstances in which he was found and he was taken into custody for investigation.

BOTH CARS DAMAGED BUT NO ONE IS HURT

G. P. Fryatt, 1908 Spurgeon street, was accused today in a complaint filed with the district attorney by G. H. Coons, 1520 West Second street, with having "cut a corner" at Fourth and Shelton streets, where the cars of Fryatt and Coons collided last evening. Both cars were damaged in the collision, but according to a report by Coons at police headquarters, no one was injured.

MAN NEAR DEATH FROM GAS AT HOTEL HERE

Overcome by fumes arising from a gas heater in his bed room, Frank Keys, 40, salesman registered at the Richelleu hotel, Fourth and Ross streets, was resuscitated this afternoon after having been found in an unconscious state by Mrs. John Avas, wife of the proprietor. Mrs. Avas, upon finding Keys, notified the police department and Policemen Elliott and Stewart responded. After a short time Keys showed signs of breathing but at the time no further identification of the man was possible. He had been at the hotel only a short time, Mrs. Avas stated.

It is said that Keys retired last night, closing the windows and lighting the gas in a small heater in the room. It is believed that the fumes contaminated the air, causing his condition when found today.

MONOGRAMS AND SWEATERS FOR GRID TEAM

Coach H. Marvin Morrison and twelve members of the Southern California preparatory school championship team received monograms and sweaters at a special assembly in the high school auditorium today.

Coach Morrison, Captain Howard ("Bart") Cook, Captain-elect Elwayne Wilcox, Calvin Bell, Newell Cravath, Everett Best, Elliot Best, Newton Stark, Hubert Armstrong, Donald Williams, Earl Jabs, Harold Knights and Harry Lehard were presented with monograms by Principal D. K. Hammond, in recognition of their service on the 1921 football team.

Substitutes who served faithfully during the year, were not awarded letters, by an edict of the student body, but sweaters were given as tokens of appreciation. The following were thus honored:

Bronson Buxton, Joseph Smith, Walton Finn, Howard McDonald, Carl Black, Tommy Watts, David Metz, Roland Stilleus, Roy Lehard and Albert Stilleus. Edward Covington, who worked with the "scrubs" as assistant coach and Donald Wabser, assistant line coach, also were given sweaters.

In expression of their regard and gratitude the letter men presented Coach Morrison with a solid silver miniature of the Southern California championship trophy, a football mounted on a pedestal, inscribed with words indicating the possession of the championship. Morrison responded feelingly.

Announcement was made of the games between the local 130 and 110-pound basketball teams at Orange tomorrow afternoon.

REFUSES LICENSE TO FILIPINO AND NEGRO

When Carlos S. Garrido, 21, a Filipino, and Susetta M. Gradnigo, 18, colored, appeared at the office of County Clerk J. M. Backs this afternoon and applied for a marriage license they met obstacles in the way of their wedding. Backs refused to issue a license, advising the couple to apply for a license in their home city, Los Angeles.

Take co-operative marketing. American farmers are asking for and it should be possible to afford them ample provision of law under which they may carry on in co-operative fashion those business operations which lend themselves to that method, and which, thus handled, would bring advantage to both the farmer and his consuming public.

But when we shall have done this, the farmers must become responsible for doing the rest. They must organize and the practical procedures of co-operation. These things we cannot do for them, but we can and should give them the chance to do them for themselves.

It is word for the interest of the consumer, quite equally with that of the producer, demands measures to prevent these violent fluctuations which result from unorganized and haphazard production. Indeed, the statistics of this entire subject clearly demonstrate that the consumer's concern for better stabilized conditions is quite equal to that of the producer.

No country is so dependent upon railroad transportation as is the United States.

If broad visioned statesmanship will establish fundamentally sound policies toward transportation the present crisis will one day be regarded as a piece of good fortune to the nation.

I have spoken of the advantage which Europe enjoys because of its access to the sea, the cheapest and surest transportation facility. In our country is presented one of the world's most attractive opportunities to extension of the sea ways many hundreds of miles inland.

This conference need have no fear of unfortunate efforts from the fullest development of national resources. A narrow view might dictate, in the present agricultural stress, antagonism to projects of reclamation, rehabilitation, and extension of the agricultural area. To the

HARDING VOICES PLEA FOR AID FOR FARMERS

It is an occasion of the greatest satisfaction to me that Secretary Wallace's invitation has been so widely and cordially accepted. Concerning the grim reality of the present crisis in agriculture, there can be no differences of opinion among informed people. The depressions and discouragements are not peculiar to agriculture and I think it fair to say, there could have been no avoidance of a great slump from war time excesses to the hardships of readjustment.

Recalls War Record. I do not need to tell you or the country of the supreme service that the farmer rendered our nation and the world during the war. Peculiar circumstances placed our allies in Europe as well as our country, in a position of peculiar and unprecedented dependence on the farmer.

Now in his hour of disaster, consequent on the reaction from the feverish conditions of war, he comes to us asking that he be given support and assistance, which shall testify our appreciation of his service. The administration has been keenly alive to the situation and has given encouragement and support to every measure which it believed calculated to ameliorate the condition of agriculture. In the effort to finance crop movements, to expand foreign markets, to expand credits at home and abroad, much has been accomplished. These have been, it is true, largely in the nature of emergency measures. So long as the emergency continues, it must be dealt with as such; but at the same time there is every reason for us to consider those permanent modifications of policy which make relief permanent, may secure agriculture so far as possible against the danger that such conditions will arise again, and place it as an industry in the firmest and most assured position for the future.

Need Financial Aid. The merchant, the manufacturer, the great instruments of public transportation, have been provided methods by which they can raise capital more readily than does the farmer.

The need of better financial facilities for the farmer must be apparent on the most casual consideration of the profound divergence between methods of financing agriculture and other industries. The farmer who owns his farm is capitalist, executive and laborer all in one. As capitalist he earns the smaller return on his investment. As executive, he is little paid, and as laborer he is greatly underpaid in comparison to labor in other occupations.

The lines on which financial support of agriculture may be organized are suggested in the plan of the Federal Farm loan board and in those rural finance societies which have been so effective in some European countries. The co-operative loaning associations of Europe have been effective incentives to united actions by farmers and have led them directly into co-operation in both production and marketing, which have contributed greatly to the stabilization and prosperity of agriculture.

Must Help Himself. It cannot be too strongly urged that the farmer must be ready to help himself. This conference would do most lasting good if it would find ways to impress the great mass of farmers to avail themselves of the best methods.

By this I mean that, in the last analysis, legislation can do little more than give the farmer the chance to organize and help himself.

Take co-operative marketing. American farmers are asking for and it should be possible to afford them ample provision of law under which they may carry on in co-operative fashion those business operations which lend themselves to that method, and which, thus handled, would bring advantage to both the farmer and his consuming public.

But when we shall have done this, the farmers must become responsible for doing the rest. They must organize and the practical procedures of co-operation. These things we cannot do for them, but we can and should give them the chance to do them for themselves.

It is word for the interest of the consumer, quite equally with that of the producer, demands measures to prevent these violent fluctuations which result from unorganized and haphazard production. Indeed, the statistics of this entire subject clearly demonstrate that the consumer's concern for better stabilized conditions is quite equal to that of the producer.

No country is so dependent upon railroad transportation as is the United States.

If broad visioned statesmanship will establish fundamentally sound policies toward transportation the present crisis will one day be regarded as a piece of good fortune to the nation.

I have spoken of the advantage which Europe enjoys because of its access to the sea, the cheapest and surest transportation facility. In our country is presented one of the world's most attractive opportunities to extension of the sea ways many hundreds of miles inland.

This conference need have no fear of unfortunate efforts from the fullest development of national resources. A narrow view might dictate, in the present agricultural stress, antagonism to projects of reclamation, rehabilitation, and extension of the agricultural area. To the ceremonies, approached the dean and received from him the fisherman's ring which had been taken from Pope Benedict's hand, the official pronouncement of death.

At the same time the Datary from the Vatican state chancery brought the seals with which Pope Benedict had sealed his papal bulls and briefs. The seals and the ring were then broken with a heavy hammer and fragments shown to the cardinals as evidence that Benedict's reign was at an end.

Pope Benedict's will designates his nephew, the marquis Giuseppe Della Chiesa, as the sole heir of his personal property. It states that the other property of Benedict XV was only held temporarily and returned to the church.

Cardinal Gasparri, as Cardinal Camerlengo, acts as temporary custodian until a new pope is elected.

LOCAL CATHOLICS MOURN

Requiem high mass was celebrated this morning at St. Joseph's Catholic church for the repose of the soul of the late Pope Benedict XV. The Rev. Father Abbott Placidus of Mt. Angel, Oregon, officiated, the pastor, the Rev. Father Henry Eumelen being in Mexico.

The children of the parochial school sang the mass. The altar and pulpit of the church were draped in mourning, in respect to the Pope, the spiritual head of the church.

The abbott preached yesterday, paying tribute to Pope Benedict. He stated that the event of the Pope's death was a sad one, but that his children would not be long left without the shepherd, which Jesus Christ appointed when he said to Peter: "Thou art Peter and upon this rock I shall build my church."

Father Abbott stated that from Peter, the first spiritual head of the church on earth, had descended 259 popes.

While carrying out Christ's prediction, said the abbott, the apostles would be reviled upon earth, just as had the Master. He said Pope Benedict had suffered this for the church, but that he had also been greatly loved and revered all over the world.

contrary, if agriculture is to hold its high place there must be the most liberal policy in extending its opportunity.

Splendid Profession. There must be a new conception of the farmer's place in social and economic schemes. The time is long past when we may think of farming as fitting for the man who is not equipped for or has somehow failed at some other line of endeavor. There is no business in which the executive talents of the skilled organizer and manager are more absolutely necessary than in successful farming and this applies alike to the producing, the buying and the selling phases of farming. Along with all this, the farmer must have untiring energy and a real love and enthusiasm for his splendid profession.

For such I choose to call the vocation of the farmer—the most useful, and it ought to be made, one of the most attractive among all lines of human effort.

The conference selected twelve committees to deal with the various problems. The list of committees and their chairmen include: Marketing of farm products, Harold Powell of California; national land policies, R. A. Pearson, Iowa.

S. A. MAN JAILED AS TWO OTHERS ARE HUNTED

and covered the fur salesman, Stillings and the two women with their revolvers.

All, except Barron, were forced to turn their backs, while one of the gunmen searched them. Barron used his eyes advantageously in obtaining a description of the bandits which he later gave to the police.

Forced to Remove Coat. The divorcee was forced to remove the fur coat which Stillings was presumably about to purchase for her. Barron gave up $94. Nichols yielded a $20 check issued to him by W. M. Walton, 414 1/2 West Fourth street, Santa Ana; also a watch and chain and a Long Beach Elk card. A $55 check and $25 in cash were taken from Silver.

After gathering this loot and the furs, Ferguson asked contemptuously: "Is that all the money you guks got?"

Then the two bandits backed out the front door, locking it with the key which had been left on the outside of the door.

Nichols did not quietly submit. Making his way out by another route, he reached the front of the house in time to get the license number of the Ford, as the two gunmen were driving away toward Tustin on First street. It was 225-267.

This number was promptly traced by the police to Copson, when the robbery was reported to City Marshal Sam Jernigan. Officers were sent to bring Stillings to police headquarters. At first he denied knowing the bandits. Later, when Copson produced a written order signed by Stillings, on which authority he had permitted Ferguson and the other man to use the Ford Friday and again Saturday, Stillings admitted knowing Ferguson. He denied that he had accompanied the other two men, to Copson's establishment Saturday morning just before the robbery.

Three Together, Claim. Police Officer Joe Ryan, said, however, that he had seen the three walking in that direction together an hour before the robbery took place. Ferguson and the unknown companion got the Ford. Stillings took a Ford coupe, belonging to his brother.

On the previous day, Friday, Stillings had met Barron in Santa Ana and spoke of buying the sealskin coat for the woman. They proceeded to the house on Lyon street, just south of First, and the coat was selected. Stillings, however, lacked the funds to pay for it, but assured Barron that he would have it next day.

Saturday morning he met Barron again and showed the latter a huge roll of bills.

"I've got the money now," he said. He told Barron to come to the house again, as he not only desired to buy a coat for the woman there but also wanted another coat for another woman.

Barron and the two other salesmen drove to the Lyon street house shortly after noon. Stillings reaching the house at about the same time and parking his car facing the Chevrolet driven by the salesmen. The Chevrolet was thus rendered unavailable for a quick start in pursuit of the bandits, who appeared shortly after the party had entered the house.

Descriptions Tally, Claim. The description given by Barron, Copson and Officer Ryan tally so closely as to bar error in identifying the gunmen as Ferguson and his unknown companion, the police say.

Ferguson was recently in difficulty with the county authorities because of a gambling raid made upon his billiard hall. At that time nine Mexicans were fined for gambling there. The unnamed companion has been residing at Delhi for a short time, it is said, consorting with Ferguson.

Stillings, who resides at 802 East Fourth street, has lived in Santa Ana about a year. He was formerly employed by a wholesale establishment, but his employment with that concern terminated about two months ago.

He has had no visible means of support since, according to the police. At Copson's place it was learned that Stillings has been a frequent renter of cars and was considered "good pay." For this reason, when Ferguson and the other man appeared there and asked to rent a car, Ferguson was recently in difficulty with the county authorities because of a gambling raid made upon his billiard hall. At that time nine Mexicans were fined for gambling there. The unnamed companion has been residing at Delhi for a short time, it is said, consorting with Ferguson.

The list of stolen furs, as reported to the police, includes one sea lion coat with squirrel collar, a sea lion stole, a mink cape, a coney cape with tails, a coney cape with squirrel collar, a smaller coney cape, a black fur, a skunk collar, an opossum choker, a mole choker, and a beaver choker. They were contained in a black bag and a square valise.

YOUNG BANDITS ROB NEWSBOY OF $19 HERE

Clyde McWhorter, a newsboy living at 907 West Walnut street, knows how it feels to be the victim of a real holdup.

With his purse containing about $19, he was in high spirits shortly after 8 o'clock this morning as he was going home. But as he neared the high school buildings he was stopped by two boys who asked him whether he could make change for a $5 bill.

Clyde took out his purse to see if he could be of service.

That was the last that Clyde saw of his $19.

The last seen of the two strangers, according to a report made to the police this morning, was their heels as they rounded the administration building of the high school.

One of the boys was described as being about 5 feet 6 inches in height and was wearing a brown suit with army buttons on the coat lapel. The other was said to be about 5 feet 4 inches in height and wore dark clothes, a black tie and a gray felt hat. He was described as wearing a diamond stick pin.

CLYDE FITCH COMEDY WILL BE GIVEN HERE

Announcement made today by Ernest Crozier Phillips, director of the Community players, revealed that the double bill of "Plots and Playwrights" and "The Twelve Pound Look" as originally planned to be given at the next performance of the players, had been abandoned and that instead the Clyde Fitch comedy, "The Truth," would be given.

The play necessitates nine clever actors, and the first tryout is to be held at the high school auditorium tomorrow night at 7 o'clock. The management hopes that a large number of persons will be present with the intention of trying out for the parts as it is desired to begin rehearsals at the earliest possible date.

Orange county poultrymen are awaiting with unusual interest the visit of Dr. J. R. NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The general list of the New York stock exchange today was somewhat heavy during the major part of the session, although there was a good demand for stocks and reactions. Steel common at its low price was off 2 points from last week's high. Motors were heavily sold and the reaction in Studebaker as compared with the recent top approximated 3 points.

There were some exceptions to the general trend, including Gulf States steel, which had a break of 2 1/2 points in two days at the end of last week, the rubber shares and a number of specialties. Consolidated Gas sold off about two points on the financial statement, although most of the forecasts indicated a deficit. Several brokerage houses are advising caution in the taking of new commitments on the theory that the January rise has gone far enough for the present.

Call money closed at 5 1/2-2 per cent late in the session.

The market closed irregular.

There were some exceptions to the general trend, including Gulf States steel, which had a break of 2 1/2 points in two days at the end of last week, the rubber shares and a number of specialties. Consolidated Gas sold off about two points on the financial statement, although most of the forecasts indicated a deficit. Several brokerage houses are advising caution in the taking of new commitments on the theory that the January rise has gone far enough for the present.

Call money closed at 5 1/2-2 per cent late in the session.

The market closed irregular.

ILLNESS PROVES FATAL TO L. B. PUBLISHER

(United Press Leased Wire)
LONG BEACH, Jan. 23.—The entire city is today mourning the death of Colonel Frank C. Roberts, founder and publisher of the Long Beach Daily Telegram and a newspaperman of many years' experience. Roberts died of heart disease at the Loma Linda sanitarium, where he went in the hope of regaining his health. His death occurred Sunday morning at 2 o'clock. His daughter, Miss Belle McCord Roberts, was with him when he expired.

Five years ago Mr. Roberts underwent a major operation for a stomach ailment. Recurrences of this complaint sapped his strength, causing him to fall by almost imperceptible degrees.

After having done newspaper work in nearly every big city in the country, including Washington, D. C., Mr. Roberts came to Long Beach. On December 26, 1904, he established the Daily Telegram. He and J. J. Penny were the exclusive owners of the paper.

An Elk, Shriner and Knight Templar, Mr. Roberts possessed many friends.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the First Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. L. T. Guild will officiate. Interment will be in Sunnyside cemetery.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Two days in jail and a fine of $100 was the punishment imposed on Aaron Kososky, president of a local fur company, for staging a "fox hunt" on Fifth Avenue last Tuesday as an advertising stunt. Kososky pleaded guilty to a charge of cruelty to animals.

300,000 RAIL MEN SUFFER WAGE SLASH

(United Press Leased Wire)
CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Millions of dollars were slashed today from the pay of 300,000 railroad clerks, freight handlers and station employees by the United States railroad labor board.

The board announced sweeping changes in war time working agreements.

No overtime will be paid the above classes of employees until after nine hours work. Eight hours remains as the working day but time and a half will not be paid until after the ninth hour.

The railroads were also authorized to employ men on "split tricks." Thus, in small towns, workers can be employed intermittently during any eight of twelve hours instead of working eight consecutive hours.

Union officials refused comment pending study of the decision. In normal times, it was estimated, the ruling will save the roads $50,000,000 a year.

BARE FALSE REPORT ON DEATH OF POPE

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The false reports of the death of the Pope Benedict XV was published Saturday by newspapers receiving the Associated Press and Hearst's International News Service as direct cablegrams from Rome under credit lines of those two services. Later both admitted their error and retracted their own dispatches after widespread premature mourning had been caused throughout the Catholic community in America.

Examples of the publication of the false rumors follow:

The New York Globe, in an extra edition, Saturday afternoon, under a banner headline, reading: "Pope Benedict dead," published the following:

By The Associated Press
ROME, Jan. 21.—Pope Benedict died at the Vatican today.

Hearst's New York Journal, under a banner headline, reading: "The Pope is Dead," published the following:

By International News Service
ROME, Jan. 21.—Pope Benedict XV died today. Death was due to pneumonia, etc.

Similar extras were issued in various cities by papers publishing Associated Press and I. N. S. dispatches.

In statements issued Saturday night and Sunday in explanation of the false publication the Associated Press and I. N. S. laid great stress on dispatches which they said were carried by European agencies.

So far, however, no explanation has appeared for the dispatches published under the credit lines of the A. P. and I. N. S. as having come direct from Rome.

The Patchwork Quilt
HAVE YOU A PIECE
TO PUT IN IT?

By ELEANOR ELLIOTT.
It's queer what a man will swallow
When hunger assails his breast;
It's queer, when a man is weary,
What stones will offer a rest!
It's queer what a lover of reading
Will choose for his dearest books;
It's queer what a jaundiced vision
Will name as a standard of looks!
But the queerest of all queer fancies
On the earth, in the air, on the sea,
Is the one that oft in my musings,
Has offered itself to me.
I study about it early—
I ponder upon it late—
It's queer what a man will fancy
When ready to choose a mate!

J. W. E. on North Main street, whose mind seems a veritable storehouse of odd and unusual bits of verse, as well as delightful ones, has again come to the front with a clever parody, this time on Longfellow's Psalm of Life.
A few weeks ago, J. W. E. sent us a parody on "John Anderson, My Jo John" which he knew back in his boyhood days, you probably all remember it, for it seemed particularly apropos in this day of John Barleycorn.
The present parody, according to the contributor, is called "The Old Maid's Lay of Life."
"Tell me not, in idle jingle,
Marriage is an empty dream;
For the girl is dead that's single,
Such girls are not what they seem.
Life is real! Life is earnest!
Single blessedness a fib;
Man thou art, to man returnest,
Has been spoken of the rib.
Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is our destined end or way;
But to act that each tomorrow
Finds us nearer marriage day.
Art is long, and Time is fleeting,
And our hearts, though bright and gay,
Still, like muffled drums are beating
Wedding marches all the way.
In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of Life,
Be not like dumb, driven cattle!
Be a hero, in the strife!
Trust no Future, howe'er pleasant!
Let the dead Past bury its dead!
Act, act in the living Present!
Heart within and hope ahead!
Lives of married folk remind us
We may live our lives as well,
And, departing, leave behind us
Such examples as shall tell.
Such examples, that another,
Spending life in idle sport,
A forlorn unmarried brother,
Seeing shall take heart and court.
Let us then be up and doing,
With a heart to marriage set;
Still contriving, still pursuing,
And each one a husband get."
NOT SO LONG AGO we announced to the world in general (as bounded by the four walls of our "editorial room.")
"We will now rise and sing,
Oh where, oh where has my Falstaff gone?
Oh where, oh where can he be?"
hoping that it would bring a reply in the shape of at least a couplet. Alas! our hopes were vain, and all the result, so far as the quilt was concerned, was the following pencilled note.
"The durn 'cuss seems to be suffering with pressure of duties, plus a certain inclination to loaf, in the evening."
(Signed) Falstaff.

Comus Club Plan
Embraces Expedition
To Wilds of Frozen North

Members of the Comus club, that merry organization whose principal reason for being, lies in the pleasant evenings devoted to the service of the god, Terpsichore, are anticipating the coming of Wednesday night, January 25, when they will migrate northwards.
The migration will not be to the far and frozen north, however, for it will stop short of the Arctic circle.—Some distance short, or to be more exact, the frozen steppes of Orange will be the resting place of the members who will pause to laugh a bit and dance a bit in Campbell's hall, located over the Den O' Sweets, in that fair city in the direction of the northern lights.
Mr. and Mrs. William H. Spurgeon jr., have issued invitations to the merry affair, which promises to equal, if not surpass, all those of previous date.

Fraternal Aid Union

The Fraternal Aid Union has had a series of pleasant affairs lately and the new year has started off with three;

First, installation of new officers which took place January 6 in M. W. A. Hall. Guests were admitted and the ceremony was impressive and well conducted. W. G. Gould was installing officer; Mrs. J. Wiley Harris, marshal, while other members of the staff were Miss Pearl Pankey, Mrs. Albert Schreff, R. L. Loucks and J. Wiley Harris.

The list of new officers is as follows: president, Mrs. Allie Cain; vice-president, Mrs. John Baker; secretary, Mrs. W. G. Gould; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Harris; chaplain, Miss Marston; Guide, Mrs. J. A. Gardner; captain, Mrs. Henry Ganz; inner guard, J. E. Armstrong; outer guard, Henry Ganz, trustee, John Baker.

Each officer, when seated, was presented with a bouquet of violets and maiden hair fern by two little flower girls, Helen Gardner and Helen Luck.

Preceding the installation, was the regular initiation, when Mrs. Stella McClure was welcomed to membership.

Mrs. Cain, on receiving the gavel, made a splendid address and she will have the support and encouragement of every member during her term.

The retiring president, Mrs. A. A. Patterson, has enjoyed an enviable popularity during the past year and the lodge has been brought into splendid condition through his efforts.

The collation following installation was fine, hot rolls, hot baked beans, pickles, coffee, cake, provided by Mrs. A. A. Patterson and her committee.

The second affair of the lodge, occurred last Thursday night when a surprise was planned and executed on the past president and his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Patterson at their residence on Bristol street. Of all the large membership but few were absent and the crisp night air gave zest to the enjoyment of the evening.

Mmes. McCord and Schreff had every move perfectly planned. There were several jolly games in which every one participated. A feature was the "Auction."

The gentlemen had been given "money" and with W. G. Gould as "auctioneer" the bidding at the time was spirited as in this way each secured his partner for refreshments. Prizes were awarded Miss Marston, Mrs. J. H. Walker, R. L. Loucks and R. P. Mitchell.

Ice cream, home made cake and hot coffee were served. A huge birthday cake, appropriately decorated and gleaming with candles was placed in the center of the table and the announcement made that it was Mr. Patterson's birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Allie Cain, on behalf of the lodge presented a casserole, pyrex and silver to Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, as a small indication of the appreciation which the F. A. U. members have for the work they have done for the order.

Meeting of Old Friends

Miss Balck and Miss McClellan were going from Los Angeles to San Diego and stopped in this city to hunt up their friends. A happy day followed for the four, with a pleasant little luncheon at the Rossmore. The tourists continued their trip to San Diego, that evening.

Chapter A. B. P. E. O.
Enjoys Luncheon Honoring
Founder and Founders' Day

With great pleasure and anticipation which were fully realized by the events which followed, fifteen members of Chapter A. B.—P. O. E. Saturday, motored to Long Beach in response to the luncheon invitation of the associated chapters of P. E. O. of that city.

The occasion was in celebration of Founders' day; and also to recognize the presence in Long Beach of one of the seven original founders of the order, Mrs. Mary Allen Stafford of Muscatine, Iowa, who is spending the winter months in the city by the sea.

All chapters of Southern California were given a cordial invitation to be present, and the unusually delightful affair was staged at the Hotel Virginia, where long tables, decked with white and yellow marmalades, emphasized the club colors.

A reception at which all guests were introduced to Mrs. Stafford, preceded the luncheon, at which approximately 300 members were seated.

Mrs. Mame Koehler of Chapter B, C, Long Beach, presided as chairman of arrangements, while Mrs. Mary Rominger of Chapter E, C, acted as toastmistress, giving a most interesting talk on the origin, activities and aims of P. E. O.

It was 53 years ago at Iowa Wesleyan university, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, that seven young students organized the club which has since grown to a membership of 30,000 in the United States. Of this number California alone boasts 2,400. Santa Ana's chapter A. B. has an active membership of 84.

Mrs. Rominger called upon various guests "present for toast," following the invocation offered by Mrs. Sever Newman and music by Miss Burlingame and Miss Keck.

The first toast, "Our Honored Guests," was responded to by Mrs. Maude Clock, after which Mrs. Stafford, as guest of honor, gave a brief account of the founding of the organization. Of the seven youthful enthusiasts, only three remain, Mrs. Stafford, Mrs. Alice Bird Barb, Aurora, Ill., and Mrs. Franc Rhodes Ellott, Chicago.

The next toast, "P. E. O. in the Golden West," was responded to by Mrs. Minnie Wightman, after which Mrs. Elizabeth Childs offered a piano selection.

"Educational Fund (Our Goal)" was next on the program and was responded to by Mrs. F. L. Robbins, with "Our Star" following by Mrs. Mary Houseworth.

Mrs. Nellie Moore charmingly sang "The Valley of Laughter" to the piano accompaniment of Mrs. Flora K. Nelson, completing the formal program of the afternoon.

Local chapter members attending were charmed with Mrs. Stafford, whom they found a very sweet and cultured woman, charmingly simple in her manner, and a most fluent and interesting talker.

The hospitality of the Long Beach chapters, was another pleasant feature of the day, which was enjoyed by Mrs. Emrys White, Mrs. Mark Lacy, Mrs. R. R. Miles, Mrs. Harry Hansen, Mrs. Elliott Rowland, Mrs. Fred Rowland, Mrs. Lewis P. Moulton, Mrs. A. C. Zaiser, Mrs. Maude Chase, Mrs. B. L. Colvin, Mrs. G. E. Bruns, Mrs. L. L. Whitson, Mrs. J. E. Gowen, Mrs. Susie Rutherford, Mrs. W. H. Sutton, Mrs. T. B. Kelly, Miss Gertrude Montgomery.

Dinner En Famille
Celebrates Birthday
Of Local Business Man

Charming in its appointments was the dinner at which Mrs. Lincoln J. Carden yesterday entertained in honor of the birthday anniversary of her husband, Lincoln J. Carden, at their home, the Holton Arms, 405 West Adams street, Los Angeles.

The delicious five-course dinner was served at noon, from a table charmingly centered with pink carnations and baby's breath, massed in a handsome cut-glass bowl. The flowers harmonized in color with dainty place cards and nut cups marking the individual places.

The dinner was strictly en famille and called together Mr. and Mrs. Lester Carden with their sons, Lester jr. and Billy, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hill and son Herbert, of this city, Miss Helen Carden of the home, and the host and hostess.

Pirates of Penzance
Rehearsals Continuing
With Unabated Enthusiasm

"It seems truly remarkable how each member of the 'Pirates of Penzance' cast, is mastering his part," today declared Robert Brown, himself the Pirate King of the company.

In discussing the plans for the presentation of the musical comedy by the Orange County Choral union on the nights of February 28 and March 1, Mr. Brown gives all credit to Cecil Rhodes, whose ability as a musician has long been recognized by Santa Ana, but whose ability as a director was first realized at the performance of "The Mikado," the Choral union's initial offering along the lines of musical comedy.

For talent in the members of such an organization, is not all, nor is musical ability, all. Talent and ability must be properly directed, to yield a finished performance such as was "The Mikado" and such as "The Pirates of Penzance" promises to be.

Beginning with this week, the members of the cast will hold two regular rehearsals weekly, meeting Monday and Wednesday nights at Junior high school. In addition to the two rehearsals for the entire cast, the principals will continue their practice of meeting Friday night at the Ellis Rhodes studio where Mr. Rhodes meets with them, and with careful attention to every little detail, rehearses them over and over again, in their parts.

"Ellis Rhodes is able to throw himself into any part, at a second's notice," declared Robert Brown, who advances the opinion that Rhodes is possessed of a remarkable dramatic ability, in addition to his musical talent. "Otherwise, he could not visualize the part for us so perfectly," he stated.

With this competency at the head of the Choral union, little wonder that "The Mikado" as a success, was so great that Santa Ana is anxiously awaiting the second offering on the organization. "The Pirates of Penzance," another of the tuneful Gilbert and Sullivan operas, to be given February 28 and March 1, at the high school auditorium.

Pretty Ceremony
Unites Orange Maid
And Son of Santa Ana

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde J. Hinkley, are today honeymooning in the delightful atmosphere of the Mission Inn at Riverside, following the quiet ceremony which, on Saturday, united their lives and fortunes.

Saturday morning at 10:30, Mr. Hinkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hinkley, No. 5, Mills court, and Miss Mary Viola Dunn, daughter of Mrs. Mary Dunn of Orange, were accompanied by the members of their immediate families and one or two friends, to the parsonage of the First Christian church, where the pastor, the Rev. F. T. Porter, read the solemnly impressive lines of the marriage service, using the pretty ring ceremony.

Guests on the occasion, included Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hinkley, Mrs. Dunn, Miss Lydia Dunn, Messrs. Floyd Lieser and Herbert Jones, and last, but not least, the two dear grandmothers of the groom, Mrs. Mary Rogers of this city, and Mrs. J. C. Hinkley of Long Beach.

The bride's girlish charm was enhanced by her lovely frock of dark blue Canton crepe, whose color note was repeated in the chic little hat of taffeta, while a corsage of fragrant English violets added a distinctive touch.

There were no attendants at the wedding, and immediately after receiving the loving wishes of those present, the happy young people left by motor for the charms of Mission Inn.

Upon their return from their honeymoon, they will be domiciled at 211 East Tenth street, where they will extend a warm welcome to their many friends, after February 1.

Mrs. Hinkley, as Miss Mary Viola Dunn, was a popular member of the younger social set of Orange, while Mr. Hinkley is equally well known in this city, where he spent his school life up to the final two years of high school, when he was in Long Beach, and graduated from the Long Beach, and graduated from the Long with the Standard Oil company.

SANTA ANA BIBLE CLASS LEADING BY 77 POINTS

In the membership and attendance contest between the men's Bible classes of Fullerton and Santa Ana, this city today reports a lead of seventy-seven points over its competitor as a result of 212 members attending class services here yesterday morning at the West End theater, against an attendance of 173 reported from Fullerton. Fifteen additional members of the Santa Ana class reported too late yesterday to be included in the official attendance.

The standing of the two classes at present gives Santa Ana 387 points with 310 for Fullerton, the contest to close March 1, at which time a $25 American flag will be awarded to the winner.

In addressing the Santa Ana class yesterday, the Rev. F. T. Porter, pastor of the First Christian church here, pointed out the necessity of concentration in order to emerge as winner in the class contest.

"Do your thinking in the morning before breakfast," the pastor urged class members. "Get into your muscles before you get into your clothes. Do not take the contest as a joke. It is a religious matter as well as one of pride that is confronting you in this contest. Do not loaf on the job—give your soul plenty of exercise by doing kind acts; help some discouraged person and aid the tempted boy in overcoming his desires. Mental work of this kind will stimulate you to higher and better things, and success will follow naturally."

STATE BOARD TO FIX WATER PROTEST DATE

The state water commission February 9 will set a date when the city must file an answer to the protests of the John T. Carpenter, and the Serrano water companies and the Irvine company against the proposal of the city of Santa Ana to file on run-off waters in Santiago creek.

This was the information contained in a communication which was on file today at the office of Walter Wray, city water superintendent, and which was received late Saturday from the state water commission, San Francisco.

In the meantime, Clyde Bishop, special counsel for the city, will continue to investigate from every angle the situation with reference to what legal rights the city may have in the matter.

Should it be found that the case can be fought in the courts with any possibility of success, answers will be prepared.

TRAVELED ALL OVER EUROPE IN HER SEARCH

Well Known Fashionable Modiste Spared Neither Time or Money and Visited Many Famous Resorts Trying to Regain Health.

Troubles of Twelve Years' Standing Overcome By Taking Tanlac and She Feels So Good It All Seems Like a Dream, Says Mrs. Thomas.

"When I think of the twelve long years that I suffered and of all the money I spent trying to get rid of my troubles and then think how completely and with such little expense I was restored to health by Tanlac, it all seems like a dream and looks almost too good to be true," said Mrs. W. E. Thomas, a fashionable modiste, whose establishment is located at 1940 Third Ave., San Diego, Cal.

"I had spared neither time nor money in seeking relief and had traveled all over Europe and had taken trips to Alaska and the Orient and visited many health resorts in America without getting any substantial benefit.

"The way Tanlac helped me, therefore, is all the more remarkable. My family, friends and relations are all astonished at the big change in me and say that I look at least fifteen years younger than my age."

NOTE—Tanalac Vegetable Pills are an essential and vitally important part of the Tanlac treatment. You cannot hope to get the most satisfactory results from Tanlac without first establishing a free and regular movement of the bowels. Tanlac Vegetable Pills are absolutely free from calomel and are sold on a positive guarantee to give satisfaction. Tanlac is sold in Santa Ana by the Rowley Drug Co.

UP-STATE NEWS

SAN FRANCISCO — Bullhead Point shoal, on the east side of San Pablo bay, which has been a menace to bay traffic for some time, is no more. The government dredge San Pablo has finished a three weeks' job of making a channel twenty-four feet deep at this place. Well No. 1 of the Bonna Vista Hills Co., Kern county, Roy Bauer, who made the analysis, stated that the gas was taken from a depth of 1700 feet.

NEWMAN — Henry B. Hilliard, receiver of the defunct First National Bank of this place, has declared the third dividend since he assumed charge. It amounts to 5 per cent, making 35 per cent paid to stockholders. The dividend is payable January 23, on the anniversary of the bank's failure.

His "Brilliance of Written Words"

ARTHUR BRISBANE began his newspaper experience as a reporter on The Sun staff when a very young man fresh from his college studies. He sat around for weeks without attracting attention, getting what he did write cut to small proportions and giving no promise of the genius within him.

And then of a sudden the spirit and the understanding of the business came to him and he blazed out into a brilliancy of written words and a comprehension of what to write and how to write it that made his associates gasp in admiration; and he went on to supreme success.

WEST END BODY WILL PROTEST NOISANCES

Charging as nuisances certain conditions that now exist in the western section of Santa Ana, a committee composed of Jay C. Hamill, the Rev. H. C. Basney and A. E. Neal from the West End Improvement association, tonight will appear before the city trustees in an effort to have changes made which they claim will tend to aid in the future growth of their portion of the city.

That was the course of action decided by about thirty members of the West End Improvement association in its second meeting held at the Franklin school Saturday night. Another committee from the organization composed of Jay C. Hamill, E. M. Waters and M. W. Bray, was appointed to take up with the trustees the proposition of routing Pacific Electric cars to Orange on twenty-minute schedule west on Fourth street to Artesia, or as an alternative, the finishing of certain streets and the establishment of a jitney service similar to that at Long Beach.

Members of the West End Improvement association voted to hold meetings hereafter on the first and third Mondays of each month at the Franklin school and for each member to bring to the next gathering at least one potential member.

Adopt By-Laws

Rules and by-laws of the association were adopted Saturday night as presented by the committee composed of H. C. Basney, Jay C. Hamill, E. M. Waters and M. B. Locke.

The rules declare that the organization shall be "non-political, non-sectarian and shall not be conducted for financial profit; that the association is organized for the general betterment and upbuilding of the civic, moral, sanitary and educational standards of the western part of the city, for the encouragement and development of a more neighborly spirit among the citizens of the community and for co-operative action to secure such public and other improvements as to advance the standard of living among the citizens of Santa Ana.

Await Protest Reply

Another matter that will come before the city council tonight will be that pertaining to protests against paying assessments on North Main street. The trustees are expected to announce a decision in this regard. Protestants last Monday night told the council that in their opinion Edward Dahl, city superintendent of streets, should have assessed the cost of intersection paving according to benefits and not, as he did, according to frontage on side street and Main street.

SAN JOSE MUNICIPAL BOOKS IN GOOD ORDER

SAN JOSE, Jan. 23.—Reports of the public accountants who examined the books and accounts of the city officials for the fiscal year ending November 30, 1921, were filed with the city council.

The reports show that the city has cash in the First National bank amounting to $164,341.10; the bonded debt is set forth as $813,550, while the debt of the city has been reduced during 1921 by $22,925.

The books and all accounts of the city auditor were found in good order, but the reports make several suggestions regarding changes in the method of accounting in the police department, police court, city building and plumbing and city license departments.

10,000 BBLs. BONDED LIQUOR IN BAY CITY

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—More than 4000 gallons of whisky were withdrawn from bond last month, the amount being somewhat larger than usual owing to the "holiday rush." There are now about 10,000 35-gallon barrels left, according to John P. McLaughlin, collector of internal revenue, and these will last quite some time, thinks E. F. Mitchell, prohibition director.

Some complaints have been made to Mitchell by dealers that California owners of bonded whisky are holding up their prices, knowing buyers may not purchase elsewhere. When Collector McLaughlin took office several weeks ago he asked the treasury department at Washington to have all the bonded whisky regauged. It was not forthcoming, so he accepted custody of the whisky "with reservations." He declines to be responsible if any is found missing.

BRILLIANT LIGHT RADIATES FROM NEW SYSTEM

Santa Ana's beautiful "white way" long anticipated and somewhat impatiently awaited, became a glowing reality last Saturday night. At that time electrical current was turned into the eighty-six marbleite standards installed last fall by the J. G. Robertson Electric company.

Although a long delay followed completion of the North Main street standards, last December, this was not attributable to the Robertson company, which installed the lights under a sub-contract. The Southern California Edison company was unable to secure the special transformers necessary to the proper operation of the lights and was finally decided to use temporary transformers in order to connect up the lighting system.

The lighting system, which extends from Sixth street to the city limits, will be operated for the present under the temporary arrangement. Special transformers manufactured by the General Electric company at Schenectady, N. Y., are not expected to arrive here for at least 30 or 40 days.

The North Main street lights were turned on just before dusk Saturday night and were again in full operation last night. Santa Ana residents and out-of-town visitors were unimpressed in their praise of the beautiful effect created by the illumination.

There are three lamps on each standard, the top lamp being 250 candle power and the two side lamps, being 80 candle power each. Each standard will burn at full capacity until midnight, when the top light will be extinguished. The side lamps will burn until daylight.

Jenkins was treated at the Community hospital here last night for cuts on his arm said to have been sustained when he fell or was pushed through a large front window of a furniture store on West Chapman avenue, Orange.

P. G. AND E. REPAIRING BEAR RIVER FLUME

GRASS VALLEY, Jan. 23.—The Pacific Gas and Electric company has a crew of sixty men employed in repairing its power flume on Bear river, east of here. During the recent storm about 200 feet of the concrete flume was washed out and the service has been much crippled in consequence. This canal supplies water to three power houses between Colfax and Auburn, but by using a small auxiliary ditch, a partial service was given.

REALTORS HOME FROM OAKLAND CONVENTION

Santa Ana realtors who attended the convention of the California Real Estate association at Oakland last week were home today with higher conception of their obligation to real estate purchasers than they had prior to the convention, and with an almost definite order for the next convention stuck away in their vest pocket.

Decision as to the place of the next convention is in the hands of the state board of directors and may not be made until about three months before the date of the next annual meeting. The Orange county delegates made a strong and favorable impression on the convention and mention of the name of Santa Ana always was greeted with applause.

Can Santa Ana entertain a convention of 500 delegates? This was the question uppermost in the minds of state directors, as indicated by their inquiries. They were assured that the accommodations are here. With doubting directors convinced that the city can entertain such a delegation, there is no question but that the city will be chosen, in the opinion of the delegates.

The convention program was full of meat for real estate dealers, and everyone who attended returned home with the feeling that he had derived great benefit.

Among those from Santa Ana who registered at the convention were Freeman Bloodgood, J. C. Wallace, Everett A. White, Lynn L. Shaw, Roy Russell, C. M. McCain, O. M. Robbins, F. C. Pope, A. B. Roussele and Horace Fine. W. B. Bebee, of Anaheim, represented that city.

CITRUS GROWERS ENCOURAGED AS COLD EASES

Although unable to make any definite statement concerning possible damage, Orange county citrus growers today were greatly encouraged as the result of warmer temperatures which prevailed in this vicinity last night.

"Last night was somewhat warmer than the two preceding nights," said L. D. Palmer, manager of the Orange County Fruit exchange, "but smudging was general in many localities. This was particularly true of the Pomona, Riverside, Redlands and San Gabriel districts."

"In Orange county, the temperature was as low as 25 above zero about 7 a. m., but this lasted only a short time. The government thermometers registered 28 up until about 6 a. m., but it was somewhat colder after this hour. Shortly after 7 a. m., it began to warm up again. On the whole, we think last night was considerably warmer than the previous nights when the temperature dropped sharply."

Damage Extent Uncertain
"As for the possible extent of the damage, this is hard to determine. We have made some preliminary investigations, but these were necessarily restricted by conditions. Only the future will determine the exact conditions. I should say it will be fully ten days before citrus growers and exchange executives can begin to place an accurate estimate on the damage done by frost and cold."

Palmer said that while some growers were inclined to believe that the damage would be somewhat general, his personal belief was that adequate compensation would be found in higher prices which would prevail if the crop is curtailed.

"The citrus industry is operated upon the basis of supply and demand," Palmer said. "Naturally, if the supply is limited, the demand will be greater and higher prices will prevail. I am not inclined to take a pessimistic view of the situation, but no one can state definitely at this time just what we may expect."

Weather Modifies
Although frost warnings were sent out last night, encouragement was found by citrus growers in the announcement that a gradual rise in temperature was expected, with probably normal conditions prevailing by next Thursday. Citrus executives were further heartened by the fact that the resumption of normal weather conditions was gradual. If the change were too sudden, growers said, much fruit only slightly damaged might be seriously injured.

Orange county growers were deeply interested today in the various meetings being held for the purpose of providing more stringent measures to prohibit shipment of damaged citrus products. Representatives of the California Fruit Growers' association met today in San Bernardino prepared to go into this matter in an exhaustive manner. Citrus men from a number of other Southern California counties attended this meeting.

Members of the Fruit Growers' exchange were said to be unanimous in the opinion that Eastern shipments should be scrutinized closely in order to eliminate all fruit showing traces of damage.

The water test, of course, will be used as oranges are being put through the packing houses in preparation for marketing.

Reports from over the county show that the frost hit in an irregular way. That is, the damage seems to be spotted. One orchard may be hard hit, so far as can be determined at this time, and orchards near it seem to have gone through with little damage.

SCHOOL SEEKS LAND FOR STRUCTURE SITE
Territorial expansion of the Anaheim school district to include a site for a new school building, is sought in a petition filed with County Clerk J. M. Backs today by the Anaheim and Orange districts, providing for a change of boundary lines.

The change proposed would take from the Orange district and add to the Anaheim district sufficient ground for the desired school site, according to an accompanying recommendation by R. P. Mitchell, county superintendent of schools.

MOTHER-IN-LAW CAUSE OF DOMESTIC TROUBLE SAYS WIFE IN CHARGE

"Too much mother-in-law" was the theme of a divorce complaint filed in the superior court today by Miquela Sylvas against James Sylvas, on the alleged grounds of non-support and cruelty.

Mrs. Sylvas, charging that her husband failed to provide, declared that she forced her to live with his mother, who did not treat her kindly. They were married in Ventura county March 18, 1918, and separated last December 26.

USED CAR BARGAINS WILL FEATURE WEEK

With prices cut to the limit, automobile dealers of Orange county today entered upon a week's campaign to give buyers of second-hand cars the opportunity of the year to buy good machines at prices that should be big inducement to purchase.

Many dealers find themselves overstocked with this class of cars and they desire to realize cash and are willing to make sacrifices to clear their floors of seconds.

Dealers declare that the cars they have on hand were big values at prices quoted prior to this week. With inauguration of "used car week," which started today, the prices established make the offers of greater value than ever, it is said.

"Dealers have reached that point where they must clean up on their used cars in stock and nearly every agent in the county is co-operating in reducing prices this week," said Davis.

MUD AGAIN BLOCKS FLIGHT OF PLANE

Once again a muddy field postponed the realization of Millard Boyd's ambitions, to fly the smallest airplane in the world.

Mud to the depth of several inches on the field at the end of Artesia street yesterday prevented the mid-get plane from leaving the ground for more than a few feet, but in spite of this fact Boyd, and the pilot, T. C. Peterson, who occupied the cockpit, are confident that under suitable conditions the craft will fly.

Spectators who witnessed the attempt were equally confident in the ability of the plane to take to the air, when a suitable field can be found. With but a 300-yard straightaway, muddy in spots, the plane failed to gain sufficient momentum to leap into the air at the end. Several attempts were made, and on one occasion the craft started upward, but because of a group of trees at the end of the run, Pilot Peterson feared to try, however, and descended.

In the course of the attempts a propeller key was broken, necessitating their abandonment for the day. This accident occurred just as a light breeze came up, a factor which Peterson had expected would materially assist him in his endeavor.

Boyd plans to secure another field, probably in the south of the city, and will make another try next Sunday, he announced.

S. F. PUP 'CLEANS' CALCUTTA'S BEST

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—After having vanquished every dog in India that he met, and having mastered the English, Hindu and Chinese languages, "Rummy," pet bulldog of A. R. Gatter, returned to the city of his birth on the steamer Wolverine State. Gatter, accompanied by Mrs. Gatter, has been the representative of a linotype company in India and with his wife and dog lived in Calcutta for the past two years.

During his stay in India, "Rummy," who was born in San Francisco, fought all the dogs in Calcutta, and his master says he licked them all. More than nine times the militant canine has caused his master to run afoul of the guardians of the law because of his pugnacious tendencies.

"Rummy" is unusually intelligent even for a bulldog, and in traversing the streets of Calcutta he became accustomed to the Hindu language and later the Chinese. Gatter declares he obeys commands and understands words in both languages. The Hindu servants in the English household could speak no English and made a pet of the dog, to whom they spoke always in their native language.

EYE TO BUSINESS

The little daughter of a congressman was sitting one evening on her father's knee. She had a new little brother whom she regarded with wonder, as children do regard the latest usurper before they have learned to love him.

"Today," said her father, "a man offered to give me a whole roomful of gold for little brother. Shall I sell him?"

"But," said the father, "think how many nice things a roomful of gold would buy! Don't you think I better let the man have him?"

"No," answered the girl, thoughtfully, "let's keep him 'till he's older; he'll be worth more then."

WILL OPEN BIDS TOMORROW FOR ERECTION OF NEW JAIL

Supervisors to Have Choice of Three Types, Subject to Figures Submitted

TOP ESTIMATE $160,000

Original Design Modified to Permit Contract Under Architect's Limit

Choice of three types proposed for a new county jail, scheduled to be made tomorrow when the board of supervisors opens bids on the contract, probably hinges on the aspect of the bids toward the various types considered, it was understood today.

Estimates of cost under the three plans in view range from $130,000 to $160,000 for a medium plan and $175,000 for the most elaborate.

Naturally not being committed to any plan, the supervisors are waiting to see how the bids line up with expectations.

These expectations are based upon the bids previously received on the original jail plans, which totalled $219,000 and were rejected as out of reach.

The board then modified the plans. When the bids are opened the board is expected to select the plan that drew the most advantageous bids from the contractors.

The most pretentious of the three types follows the original plan, but not to the full extent of the original and provides for substitutions in some respects, permitting material from the present jail to be utilized.

Elimination of the elevator included in the original plan is another saving effected.

Santa Ana Rotarians to Be Given Big Surprise at Tomorrow's Meeting

A genuine surprise will be in store for Santa Ana Rotary club members when they meet tomorrow at 12:15 p. m., at St. Ann's Inn, according to D. Eymann Huff, chairman of the committee on program arrangements.

Other members of the committee consisting of the Rev. J. A. Stevenson, Elmer Heldt and D. K. Hammond were equally non-committal regarding features of the program, except that many Rotarians who plan to attend would doubtless be surprised and benefited by procedure at the meeting.

PROPOSES PHONE EXCHANGE FOR RANCHERS

Plans for the development of a telephone system by the Orange County Farmers' and Merchants' association will be discussed at a meeting of the organization to be called soon, according to a statement today by Charles Eysgrub of Anaheim, president of the association.

"We shall probably work out some plan whereby we shall be connected with the farm bureau sections," Eysgrub said, "and have long distance connections with the city systems. No definite arrangements have been made, however, and members of our association will be asked to present their ideas at the meeting when it is called by Secretary H. B. Woodrough of Costa Mesa."

The Orange County Farmers' and Merchants' association obtained the right to organize a telephone system through a decision by the state supreme court several days ago, affirming the decision of Superior Judge R. Y. Williams in the case of the people of California vs. Charles Knowlton of Fullerton. Knowlton was the plaintiff in a friendly suit to determine the status of the association in its plan to organize a mutual telephone system in the county.

CHINA'S CHAGRIN IS VOICED BY EDITOR

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—Dr. Ng Poon Chew, editor of Chung Sai Yat Po, Chinese-American daily, addressing the Progressive Business club at its "thrill" luncheon at the Palace hotel, said China was disappointed at the outcome of the Washington conference, which, he said, had ignored the rights of China and had made the same mistakes that had been made at the Paris peace conference. He said:

"To be sure, the Washington conference did not transfer her territory to other nations, as at Paris, but it has not returned to her what was taken away from her in the past."

"The indications are that the old principle that a nation has no right except what it can enforce by might still holds, and while that principle holds there can be no peace."

DAMAGE SUIT TO FIX VALUES OF CITRUS TREES

Grower Alleges Faulty Irrigation Method on Part of Neighbor Ruins Crop

What value do you ranchers place on each of your orange trees? Or did you ever consider the value of your grove in that light—by individual units?

If you haven't, or though you have, you might be interested in the way A. W. McPherson, La Habra grower, fixed the value of his trees in presenting a damage bill to his neighbor, J. Clem Arnold.

It might also be interesting to note to what extent Superior Judge R. Y. Williams agrees with McPherson in this valuation, if he agrees at all.

McPherson's damage bill, based on his allegation that Arnold was responsible for accumulation of waste water on McPherson's property, is scheduled to be placed before Judge R. Y. Williams tomorrow for the latter's approval, modification or rejection, as the court may decide.

McPherson charges that because Arnold's land has an insufficient and inadequate system of ditches, the waste water has been allowed to accumulate on McPherson's place, doing a total damage of $9,900 to trees, land and crops. Arnold, however, denies any responsibility for the damage. He uses no more water, he claims, than is necessary to irrigate his own trees, and this is supplied, he maintains, in the customary manner of the La Habra Water company which serves that district.

A value of $50 is placed on each of the 75 trees which McPherson charges up as a total loss. He asks $25 each for 50 more trees, claimed to be partially damaged.

Some of the other items on his damage bill are: Depreciation of land because of sour soil, $3,000; failure of cover crops and washing away of fertilizer, $1,000; loss of crops, $1,000; Bishop and Wellington, of Santa Ana, are attorneys for McPherson. The defendant is represented by Attorney William Hyatt of Long Beach.

CLASSES FORMED IN SAN JOSE AIR UNIT

SAN JOSE, Jan. 23.—Members of the San Jose Air Reserve squadron, recently organized in this city, were divided into classes and instructions on motors, engines and electrical appliances will begin next Thursday night.

The classes will be held at the San Jose technical high school, and Lieutenant Robert Self of Crisley field will be in charge. The squadron now numbers 157 men and thirty-six officers, but the total strength, when all are signed will be 213 men and officers.

Army officers have informed the squadron officers that nine airplanes will be sent here as soon as places for them are obtained, and efforts are now being made to have the old armory turned over to the organization as a headquarters and place for machinery.

Orange County Veterans Premise Support to Brinkop's Bid for Office

(Special to The Register) ANAHEIM, Jan. 23.—Walter Brinkop, captain of the 64th chine Gun company, will receive the support of every ex-service man in the county in his candidacy for state treasurer, in the opinion of W. P. Webb Jr., chairman of the Orange County council of the American Legion. Brinkop is a resident of Los Angeles, where he is identified with the trust department of one of the large banks. He is well known in Orange county, having visited reunions of the supply company of the 364th here a number of times.

TO KEEP CLOSER TAB ON COUNTY AUTOMOBILES

Orange county proposes to keep a check on its official automobiles.

Supervisor Howard Wassum, committee man, who has the county garage under his supervision, made this clear today when he announced that the new system of closer supervision by the board of supervisors, as recommended by the county grand jury, would probably become effective February 1.

When the plan is put into effect, county employees who make use of automobiles from the county garage must register on leaving and returning, Wassum stated.

Another change that will be made will consist in the maintenance of all-night service.

By this means every county employee who removes a car after hours will be enabled to register.

Employees now have keys which enable them to take the automobiles at any time. After February 1 all the keys will be in the hands of the garage attendants.

A night man will occupy himself with making minor adjustments on the cars stored in the garage, such as oiling and greasing moving parts. At the present time, when many of the cars are in use all day, they receive no attention until they break down, according to Wassum. The garage is situated at the corner of Church and Sycamore streets and is operated under the direction of Ora M. Somerville, 828 South Garnsey street, who is assisted by John Ward, Newport road, and Barrett Deaver, 109 1/2 Wright street. All of these men now work during the day, but when the new plan is effective, it is expected that three shifts will be organized.

WOMAN'S STATUS IN HER CHURCH TO BE ISSUE

One of the most important matters to come up for discussion at the annual convention of the Episcopal diocese at Los Angeles this week will be the question of the part women are to play in the executive and legislative deliberations of the Episcopal body, according to the Rev. W. L. H. Benton, rector of the Church of the Messiah, who left today for Los Angeles.

The convention, which is the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the churchmen, began today and will end next Friday. Hereafter women have had a prominent part in church work but her place remains to be defined with reference to actual participation in purely legislative and deliberative work.

Today's session opened with the meeting of the church school association, followed by organization of the convention. This, in turn, was followed by the meeting of the diocesan assembly, with election of officers and other routine business. Tomorrow night prominent ministers will address the gathering. These will include Bishop Johnson, the Very Rev. Dean MacCormack, the Rev. Dr. Davidson and Bishop Stevens. A dinner and reception will be held Wednesday night.

Thursday there will be a convention of young people's societies and students' clubs. The convention will close Friday with a conference of delegates.

BEACH OIL AREA PLACED AT TOP BY STANDARD

Ideal Location for Production, View Stated In Official Publication

"The Huntington Beach oil field is probably one of the most favorably situated fields in the world," says the Standard Oil Bulletin, published by the Standard Oil company of California.

And coming from the Standard, the remark means something. The entire review of the beach field as taken from the Standard Oil Bulletin follows:

"The Huntington Beach oil field is probably one of the most favorably situated fields in the world. It is located on the coast about forty miles southwest of Los Angeles. Situated on the edge of an industrial center, many of those problems which have confronted older fields in more remote districts have been eliminated.

"Before the discovery of oil by the Standard Oil company there was little to bring Huntington Beach before the public eye. True, it has a wonderful beach, and it was this alone which made it popular among the summer bathers. A very small business section was adequate to supply the existing needs. The only active industry was the manufacture of beet sugar, the surrounding country being a great beet-producing area."

Oil Changes Scene "Today the town presents a far different aspect. The many new buildings filling in the business section have given the town that prosperous and busy appearance which is always characteristic of an oil center. The housing situation has been very acute, for the building program has not been able to keep pace with the demands. There are many tent houses, and one block is entirely covered with two-room houses constructed of wall-board."

"The Standard Oil company, with leases totaling 6000 acres, started activities at Huntington Beach two years ago, and to this company alone must be given the credit of discovering the field. In August and October of last year the company brought in its first two prospect wells, and in November started the excitement by bringing in Bolsa Chica No. 1 at an estimated rate of 6000 barrels per day. Due to the terrific gas pressure and the sand which came in with the oil, the fittings were rapidly cut away and the well ran wild, standing itself up about two days later. The well was again brought into production on March 11, and is now flowing about 2000 barrels per day. The company has continued development, and at present has a daily production of 6700 barrels from seventeen wells, with twenty-two wells in process of drilling."

Rapid Developments "Development has been so rapid that in order to facilitate operations a new division has been formed, including the properties south of the Long Beach field and north of the Huntington Beach field."

"A study of the growth and activities of the Huntington Beach field is a most interesting one. When Bolsa Chica No. 1 was brought in and broke loose, the oil world awoke to the possibilities of the field; every available lot was soon under lease, and even the beach was taken up under the Placer Mining act for miles up and down the coast. A wild orgy of derrick-building started, and so persistent has been the activity that at present there are eighty-five organized companies with a total of 226 rigs and a daily production of 15,000 barrels. "At first activities were concentrated along a narrow strip between the Standard Oil company's Bolsa Chica No. 1 and its Surf well, this so-called 'productive area' extending to the northeast and eastern section of the town. Today the wells are producing from an area which would be about one mile wide by three miles in length. "The wells vary in depth from 2250 to 4200 feet, depending upon their location on the structure and the zone from which they are producing. The oil varies in gravity from sixteen to twenty-seven degrees Baumé. "Vast improvements. "The Standard Oil company is completing its tank farm and steam

DECIDES TO ACCEPT FORTUNE OF MILLION

A new picture of Charles Garland, the Massachusetts idealist, who changed his mind recently, and decided to accept the million-dollar legacy that he had refused because acceptance conflicted with his ideals. Here he is in his humble-down home on the 30-acre farm at North Carver, Mass., receiving the morning's milk from a neighbor.

PREACHERS WILL NAME OFFICERS TOMORROW

Election of officers and other routine matters will be included in the business to come before the Orange County Clerical club at a noon luncheon to be given tomorrow at James's cafe here.

Originally, it had been planned to have the wives of the Orange county clergymen present at a banquet to be given by the club in one of the Santa Ana churches on this date, but the executive officers decided to make tomorrow's luncheon for men only. It was said that a banquet may be arranged at a later date, at which all the ministers and their wives will be present.

Santa Ana ministers who will attend the luncheon will discuss among themselves the proposal to invite Evangelist John Brown, of Arkansas, to conduct a revival here next November. While the coming of the Rev. Mr. Brown will probably not be officially discussed by the clerical club, it was said that nearly all the Protestant ministers in Orange county are keenly interested in his work.

"John Brown is one of the best and safest evangelists in the United States," said the Rev. F. T. Porter, president of the Santa Ana Ministerial association. "He appeared in this field six or seven years ago and made a lasting impression. He is widely known and has conducted successful revivals in California. He is particularly well known for his activities at the Huntington Beach camp meetings."

Faulkner's court today awarded Henry Jordan White damages in the sum of $5000 in his suit against George Covell, rancher, for $50,000 sought for the loss of three fingers from the hand of White's son, aged 13 years. The boy lost the fingers when a horse which he was riding jerked the hand against Covell's automobile.

TULARE OIL FIELD ATTRACTS ENGINEER

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 23.—Interest in oil prospects in Tulare county is increasing. F. B. Springer, who is associated with Ralph Arnold, well-known petroleum engineer and geologist of the southern section of the state, has just been called to this district in connection with oil development.

Five sections are said to be under lease at Jasmine, south of Porterville, by the Danciger Development syndicate the name under which the Danciger Oil and Refining company, one of the largest mid-continent companies, is entering California. Springer expects some of Arnold's associates to interest themselves in the Jasmine section, and is looking over prospective leases near the Lois well. If he secures territory to his liking he will bring one rig from the Danciger company here.

FAIL TO GET BONDS AFTER BEACH RAID

As the result of an alleged "liquor party" held in Seal Beach Saturday night, T. J. Clark and Joe Cline, waiters employed at the Seal Inn, today were prisoners in the Orange county jail here, charged with violation of the Volstead prohibition act.

The two waiters, together with four alleged patrons of the cafe, T. C. Blankenship, V. G. Walton, T. E. Neff and M. Lester, were taken into custody by W. G. Mosher, prohibition enforcement officer, Saturday night. The last named four succeeded in getting in touch with United States Commissioner Long yesterday and were ordered released on $1000 bond each.

Federal officers allege that the men composed a party who were said to be consuming intoxicating liquors at the Seal Inn. The two waiters, who are charged with serving the drinks, were unable to furnish bond.

ROAD CONTRACTS EMBRACE NINE SECTIONS OF HIGHWAY IN COUNTY

Pouring Concrete On Three-mile Strip West of City of Garden Grove

REPORT RAPID PROGRESS

Contract Between Fullerton and Los Angeles County Is Nearing Completion

Work on a new road which is to be cut along the west bank of Santiago creek, to eliminate the third and fourth crossings in the Santiago canyon, starting today, forms only one of no less than nine scenes of activity in highway construction, now in progress or soon to start in Orange county.

As reported by J. L. McBride, county superintendent of highways, rapid progress is being made on the various contracts now under way.

Graham Brothers and Bruce, Long Beach contractors, have started pouring concrete on the three-mile strip of boulevard west of Garden Grove, where they are reinforcing the present paving. If good weather prevails, it is said that the work should be finished within three weeks.

About the same period of time will also see completion of the new concrete bridge across the Santa Ana river on West Seventeenth street, McBride stated. The work is in charge of the Mercereau Bridge and Construction company.

Connecting with this bridge at the west end, a gravel highway covering a portion of Seventeenth street, Berrydale avenue and the Garden Grove road, is now being built by B. R. Ford. The grading is already done and half of the gravel to be used has been hauled from the county pit at Live. The contractor is providing the gravel on this contract.

On Final Stretch Farther to the west, Wells & Bressler, of Santa Ana, are on the last stretch of a 2 1/2-mile paving contract, connecting the Seal Beach boulevard with the Los Angeles county line, by passing north through Los Alamitos. A mile and a-half of concrete has been laid and all materials for the remainder are now on the ground after numerous delays.

With completion of this work and the construction of a proposed new bridge across the San Gabriel river at the foot of Dixie hill, the old road to Long Beach will be reopened. The old bridge, which was about to be scrapped, was washed out by the recent floods. Los Angeles county is now preparing plans for a new pile trestle bridge to replace it. Being on the county line, its expense will be divided between Los Angeles and Orange counties. The total cost will be $5000.

Inter-County Road Another piece of highway construction of particular interest at present to motorists is that on the state highway between Fullerton and the county line. Riley & Peterson, the contractors, have already opened the Los Angeles end of this new paving and traffic is gaining passage by way of Brea.

Concrete pouring had today reached a point within a mile and a half of the Fullerton city limits. Bids are shortly to be opened by the cities of Fullerton and Orange-thorpe on a contract to pave a strip one-quarter mile long situated within those municipalities and connecting the Buena Park road with Commonwealth avenue.

Grading work has been started upon the proposed highway connecting the county park with the end of the boulevard on East Chapman avenue at the foot of El Modena grade.

If you are interested in brooders and want to see a really efficient machine, stop in here and look over the "Mansur-Lyons." During the cold snap of last week, Mr. W. C. Minnesota Attempts to to Josh Sunny California

But Doesn't Get Away With It" to Any Considerable Extent—All Good Humored and Good for a Chuckle or Two—Verses Very Clever.

As has often been noticed in these columns, Santa Ana and vicinity is literally alive with folks from Spring Valley, Minnesota. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hart, of 424 West Walnut street, Mr. Hart being an old-time schoolmate of N. H. Warner, the real estate man.

A few days ago, Mr. and Mrs. Hart received a versified letter, written by L. D. Hamlin and signed by about half a hundred of their old home friends and neighbors, which Mrs. Hart answered in kind. Here are both letters:

TO WILL AND CLARA HART
Now we, the undersigned, would say
To you in your rose covered shack,
That it's not all gold that glitters
And we think you'd better come back.

We know we're all covered with snow
But have a warm fire inside;
We old ones are playing five hundred
The kids are all out for a slide.

In our snow covered shack we're happy,
To the wall we don't fasten OUR clock
Expecting that most any minute
We might have an earthquake shock.

When your dishes all fall to the floor
And the bedsteads are chasing you 'round,
Then you all fly out in your nighties
To discover great cracks in the ground.

They say between shocks you forget it,
And go to bed feeling at ease
But say, Will and Clara, do tell us,
Does it take long to pick off the fleas?

When you've done up your Sunday baking,
And put it away on the shelf,
If the roaches and doodle bugs get it,
Do you swear very hard to yourself?

Do the snakes and tarantulas bother?
Do you have to stay in for the floods?
If oranges ARE ten cents a bushel
How much do you pay for spuds?

Now as to Bill Hart and Bill Hutton,
This is the conclusion we reach:
They'd both start back in a minute
If girls didn't bathe at the beach.

So we in our snow covered shack
Say to you in your rose covered shack:
We all will be out for a visit
Unless pretty quick you come back.

MRS. HART'S REPLY
Here's to our friends in Spring Valley,
Always so tried and so true;
Many thanks for the New Year's greeting—
Our love we send back to you.

If the floods and winds don't get us,
The land men surely will;
They are thick as mosquitoes at North Branch,
Where you used to go fishing with "Bill."

Our roads and our beaches are famous,
Our moonshine the best ever made;
In summer our fair western daughters
For clothing depend on the shade.

Our earthquakes all come in the day-time,
And save us a night shirt parade;
The cracks that you see in the ground here,
Are generally made with a spade.

Our hens are not smart like your hens,
They only lay one egg a day;
For the rest of that story ask L. D.,
It will take some explaining, we'll say.

Our fleas are all educated,
And very willing to please;
When they see a tourist a-coming
They straight away make for his knees.

Our snakes are all found in bottles,
And standing high up on the shelf,
When that self same tourist sees them
He sure wants to help himself.

Our oranges so luscious and golden
Are still hanging tight on the trees.
The green ones we pick quite early
And send them back east to freeze.

Our beds are all tight nailed down,
Some dishes are still on the shelf;
If you don't believe this story,
Just come out and see for yourself.

The Great Impersonation

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

CHAPTER XIII

There was a cloud on Seaman's good-humored face as, muffled up in their overcoats, he and his host walked up and down the terrace the next morning, after the departure of Mr. Mangan. He disclosed his mind a little abruptly.

"In a few minutes," he said, "I shall come to the great purpose of my visit. I have great and wonderful news for you, but it will keep."

"The time for action has arrived?" Dominey asked curiously. "I hope you will remember that as yet I am scarcely established here."

"It is with regard to your establishment here," Seaman explained drily, "that I desire to say a word. We have seen much of one another since we met in Cape Town. The passion and purpose of my life you have been able to judge. Of those interludes which are necessary to a human being, unless his system is to fall to pieces as dry dust, you have also seen something. I trust you will not misunderstand me when I say that apart from the necessities of my work, I am a man of sentiment."

"I am prepared to admit it," Dominey murmured a little idly.

"You have undertaken a great enterprise. It was, without a doubt, a miraculous piece of fortune which brought the Englishman Dominey to your camp just at the moment when you received your orders from headquarters. Your self-conceived plan has met with every encouragement from us. You will be placed in a unique position to achieve your final purpose. Now mark my words and do not misunderstand me. The very keynote of our progress is ruthlessness. To take even a single step forward toward the achievement of that purpose is worth the sacrifice of all the scruples and delicacies conceivable. But when a certain course of action is without profit to our purpose, I see ugliness in it. It distresses me."

"What the devil do you mean?" Dominey demanded.

"I sleep with one ear open," Seaman replied.

"Well?"

"I saw you leave your room early this morning," Seaman continued, "carrying Lady Dominey in your arms."

There were little streaks of pallor underneath the tan in Dominey's face. His eyes were like glittering metal. It was only when he had breathed once or twice quickly that he could command his voice.

"What concern is this of yours?" he demanded.

Seaman gripped his companion's arm.

Dominey's passion seemed to have burned itself out without expression. He showed not the slightest resentment at his companion's words.

"Have no fear, Seaman," he rejoined him. "The situation is delicate, but I can deal with it as a man of honor."

"You relieve me," Seaman confessed. "You must admit that the spectacle of last night was calculated to inspire me with uneasiness."

"I respect you for your plain words," Dominey declared. "The fact is, that Lady Dominey was frightened of the storm last night and found her way into my room. You may be sure that I treated her with all the respect and sympathy which our positions demanded."

"Lady Dominey," Seaman remarked meditatively, "seems to be curiously falsifying certain predictions."

"In what way?"

"The common impression in the neighborhood here is that she is a fanatic chiefly upon one subject—her detestation of you. She has been known to take an oath that you should die if you slept in this house again. You naturally, being a brave man, ignored all this, yet in the morning after your first night here there was blood upon your night clothes."

Dominey's eyebrows were slowly raised.

"You are well served here," he observed, with involuntary sarcasm.

"That, for your own sake as well as ours, is necessary," was the terse reply. "To continue, people of unsound mind are remarkably tenacious of their ideas. There was certainly nothing of the murderess in her denunciation towards you last night. Cannot you see that a too friendly attitude on her part might become fatal to our schemes?"

"In what way?"

"If ever your identity is doubted," Seaman explained, "the probability of which is, I must confess, becoming less every day, the fact that Lady Dominey seems to have so soon forgotten all her animosity towards you would be strong presumptive evidence that you are not the man you claim to be."

"Ingenious," Dominey assented, "and very possible. All this time, however, we speak on what you yourself admit to be a side issue."

"You are right," Seaman confessed. "Very well, then, listen. A great moment has arrived for you, my friend."

"Explain, if you please."

"I shall do so. You have seen proof, during the last few days, that you have an organization behind you to whom money is dross. It is the same in diplomacy as in war. Germany will pay the price for what she intends to achieve. Ninety thousand pounds was yesterday passed to the credit of your account for the extinction of certain mortgages. In a few months' or a few years' time, some distant Dominey will benefit to that extent. We cannot recover the money. It is just an item in our day by day expenses."

"Is it not almost time," Dominey enquired, "that the way was made a little clearer for me?"

"That would have been my task this morning," Seaman replied, "but for the news I bring. In passing, however, let me promise you this: You will never be asked to stoop to the crooked ways of the ordinary spy. We want you for a different purpose."

"And the news?"

"What must be the greatest desire in your heart," Seaman said solemnly, "is to be granted. The Kaiser has expressed a desire to see you, to give you his instructions in person."

Dominey stopped short upon the terrace. He withdrew his arm from his companion's and started at him blankly.

"The Kaiser?" he exclaimed. "You mean that I am to go to Germany?"

"We shall start at once," Seaman replied. "Personally, I do not consider the proceeding discreet or necessary. It has been decided upon, however, without consulting me."

"I consider it suicidal," Dominey protested. "What explanation can I possibly make for going to Germany, of all countries in the world, before I have had time to settle down here?"

"That of itself will not be difficult," his companion pointed out. "Many of the mines in which a share has been bought in your name are being run with German capital. It is easy to imagine that a crisis has arisen in the management of one of them. We require the votes of our fellow shareholders. You need not trouble your head about that. And think of the wonder of it! If only for a single day your sentence of banishment is lifted, You will breathe the air of the Fatherland once more."

"It will be wonderful," Dominey muttered.

"It will be for you," Seaman promised.

ised, "a breath of the things that are to come. And now, action. How I love action! That time-table, my friend, and your chauffeur."

It was arranged that the two men should leave during the morning for Norwich by motor car and thence to Harwich. Dominey, having changed into traveling clothes, sent a messenger for Mrs. Unthank, who came to him presently in his study. He held out a chair to her, which she declined, however, to take.

Mrs. Unthank, he said, "I should like to know why you have been content to remain my wife's attendant for the last ten days?"

Mrs. Unthank was startled by the suddenness of the attack.

"Lady Dominey has needed me," she answered, after a moment's pause.

"Do you consider," he asked, "that you have been the best possible companion for her?"

"She has never been willing to accept any other," the woman replied.

"Are you very devoted to my wife?" he enquired.

Mrs. Unthank, grim and fierce though she was and appeared to be, was obviously disconcerted by Dominey's line of questions.

"If I weren't," she demanded, "should I have been here all these years?"

"I scarcely see," he continued. "What particular claim my wife has had upon you, I understand, more over, that you are one of those who firmly believe that I killed your son. Is this attitude upon my wife a Christian act, then—the returning of good for evil?"

"Exactly what do you want to say to me, Sir Everard?" she asked harshly.

Mecca For Tourists

"There are many interesting features in the field aside from those pertaining to its operation. Each day brings a large number of visitors; some are merely interested observers, while others are bent on speculation. Buses crowded with sight-seers drive through the field, and a man with a megaphone tells them all about the 'gusher' field. Then there are the little ten-by-ten shacks scattered along Main street, serving as headquarters for many of the companies, many of them painted bright colors to attract the eye of the visitors."

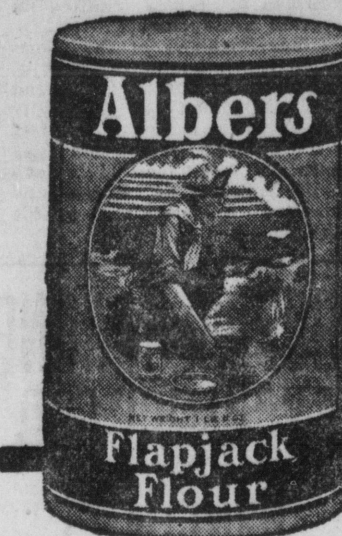

"Early boomers are being gradually replaced by substantial interests; the field continues to expand and is rapidly becoming one of the largest and most important in the state."

It's something more than beauty of material and color which makes the woman well dressed! The secret of the really effective ensemble is in the apparent relation of every part to every other part. There's a harmonizing note of Russian peasantry in this Erpf and Garbe blouse and lairdie hat.

SANTA ANA WILL BE NEW HEADQUARTERS

Santa Ana will hereafter be the headquarters of the Granger Electric company, Ned Granger head of the firm, announced here.

Planning a fifty-per cent stock increase and a general enlargement of the business here, Granger has moved to Santa Ana from Ontario where the main establishment was formerly located. The Ontario branch will be maintained but much of the stock will be transferred here in the next two weeks.

Along with the enlargement of the firm, announced here, Granger said that a finishing plant for fixtures would be established. With this system, electrical fixtures may be finished to match draperies or interior decorations in any way desired.

Carl O. Gaffney, manager of the Santa Ana store, will continue in that capacity, Granger announced, and will be in complete charge of the appliance department which the firm intends to make a big part of its business during the coming year.

"We will be fixed better than ever to handle the fixture and wiring business," Granger said today, "but we will also make a feature of our electric motors."

"It is to be a general enlargement of our entire stock that has been warranted by the great increase in business here."

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

RIVERSIDE—The Babbitts canyon road for which the county supervisors recently appropriated $10,000 has just been completed, according to Kenneth Dickerson, assistant county surveyor who returned to Riverside after going over the new route. The work has been finished and the crew and machinery moved out. The new road opens up a large farming acreage which it is believed will be quickly developed.

SAN BERNARDINO—Contract for the building of two bungalows to be used as emergency quarters for the Fourth street and F street schools, was given to C. Waldman, contractor price for both buildings being $3940. Waldman, who is the builder of the Base Line school, will start work on the two structures at once, it is stated. They will be ready for occupancy in about 30 days.

PASADENA—Dr. Remsen D. Bird, president of Occidental college, has returned from an Eastern trip, where he represented Occidental in the raising of an endowment.

While in the East Dr. Bird met with Occidental groups in Chicago, Princeton, and other institutions, and received a royal welcome by different national boards in the East. President Bird has won a place in the hearts of the students of Occidental in the short period of time that he has been there, and the slogan the Occidental has taken is the "greatest small college in the world."

LOVE'S REDEMPTION

Regeneration, a theme that always pulls the heart and entertains, especially when it is a woman's regeneration, is the leading subject of "What Women Will Do," the picture showing at the West End tonight, with Anna Q. Nilsson featured at the head of a capable cast.

Charles A. Logue, the author, has woven his story around a girl of the underworld—a girl who has lived life as she found it, lacking the inspiration of high ideals. She eagerly enters into a scheme to pose as the widow of a wealthy woman's dead son and cheat the old lady out of her fortune.

But she had reckoned without conscience. The older woman's utter trust and faith in her aroused a long dormant conscience that gave her no rest until she had confessed. A very charming romance enters into the story, and her greatest test was telling the man she loved of her past. But he had the power to forget what she had the courage to confess, and, after many heartaches, she found happiness and peace at last.

"PLAYING WITH FIRE"

The independence of the working girl is a thing worth studying. The American girl of this type is a remarkable figure—and hence much of the interest attached to Gladys Walton's charming portrayal of such a figure in "Playing With Fire" at the Princess theater tonight.

The heroine is a girl whom we all know—with all the little intimate touches that mean much in a picture.

The little star's delineation of the character of a girl who craves to switch from cheap music store to society atmosphere is decidedly sympathetic. The feeling's there, it's not simply technique and direction—though proper credit must be given to Dallas Fitzgerald for his guidance of the filming.

"Molly O"—

Don't miss seeing Mabel Normand—she is to be here all this week at the Temple theater in "Molly O," the cinema production in which she returned to the Mack Sennett studios, under the direction of F. Richard Jones, who directed her film, "Mickey."

It is a story effervescing with comedy against a background of romance, wit, humor, pathos, beauty, a bit of pageantry and plain, every day melodrama, in which the villain is whipped bare-handed by the hero following a thrilling aeroplane chase across skies after a fleeing blimp. Some thriller!

It is also a picture of a love story as sweet as anything that has come to the screen in recent months.

After you have seen "Molly O" you'll probably scoff at the absurdity of the plot; you'll want to pick a quarrel with Mack Sennett for not cutting the camera at the end of the real story, instead of giving us that sensational, melodramatic anti-climax; you'll wish Jack Muhlall put a little more punch into his delineation of the romantic millionaire physician; you'll commend George Nichols for his excellent portrayal of the father; you'll probably find a dozen flaws in the film—but——you'll find "Molly O" refreshing; you'll enjoy it and you'll probably tell your friends that Mabel Normand is doing the best work of her long and noteworthy career as a merry-maker for the shadows.

See it, you don't!

ATHLETIC STAR

George Walsh, who plays the leading male role in Brother R. A. Walsh's production, "Serenade," due at the Yost tomorrow, was born and raised in New York and studied law at Georgetown university. As a boy he was always fond of athletics. At the age of nine he swam the Hudson river. He stroked the New York Athletic club and holds college football kicking records.

His one ambition as a boy was to grow up to be as nearly physically perfect as possible, and if what his trainer says is so, his ambition has been realized. Jake Webber, his trainer, says George is about as perfect a specimen of manhood as he has ever seen, and Jake, who was a member of the American Olympic games committee ought to know.

For the YOUNG PEOPLE

AN IMPROVISED SAIL

IT'S no use, Tom," said Ellis Grayson, as he stood up, greasy and hot, from tinkering with the engine. "I can't make it now. We'll have to wait for a tow."

Tom Webster, Ellis's cousin, knew nothing about motor boats, for he had spent his life on a Kansas farm. Now he looked uneasily at the gathering storm and the broad expanse of the Hudson River. Their engine had failed them as they were in the middle of Tappan Zee Bay, and there was a mile and a half of water between their boat and each shore.

"All the other boats seem to have run for cover, Ellis," Tom said as he glanced about. "Supposing we can't get a tow before the storm breaks?"

"We don't need to worry about that," Ellis replied confidently. "A strong wind can kick up a sea right here, but nothing that can swamp the Sea Gull. Besides, we're almost sure to get a tow."

As he spoke, however, he peered at the sky and realized that almost every boat on the river must be scurrying for the nearest anchorage. He had never seen such an ominous sky or felt so strongly the threat of an impending storm. There was a dead calm, portentous with a strange, electric premonition of coming turmoil. Huge black clouds were rolling across the western hills and spreading darkness over the river.

"Ellis," said Tom quietly, "I don't know anything about storms and this one is going to be a terror. Isn't there something we can do to reach a safer place?"

Ellis's nerves were getting jumpy and he replied a trifle sharply.

"If you did know more about boats, Tom, and about this part of the country you would know that there is nothing to be afraid of. A long, heavy northwest wind might kick up a sea here that would bother us, but the wind in a thunderstorm doesn't last long enough. Besides, there's nothing we can do. I—I forgot to bring ours and we haven't any mast or sail."

It grew darker and darker. Still not a breath of wind stirred. The water was smooth and oily and reflected the blackness of the sky.

"Great Scott!" exclaimed Ellis after a strained moment. "I wish something would start. This calm gets on a fellow's nerves."

Tom agreed quietly. The blackness deepened; the clouds swirled lower and lower. The boys were oppressed by a sense of being shut in, as if the sky were descending to crush them. There was a distinct rolling of low thunder behind the hills in the west and they glimpsed a faint flash of lightning in that direction.

Suddenly Ellis shouted. "Look!" he cried and pointed into the northwest. Tom saw a peculiar commotion at one point among the shifting, tumbling clouds. They seemed to be whirled and tossed in all directions. Then out of the confusion sank a black, inverted cone of cloud. It grew larger and larger and dipped lower and lower. "It's the funnel of a cyclone!" Tom cried. "I've seen 'em in Kansas."

"A cyclone! We don't have those things in this part of the country."

"You're having one now," retorted Tom. "But it won't amount to much probably. Too many hills for one thing. But that's what it is."

"But there isn't any wind."

"There will be," said Tom grimly.

In awed fascination the boys stood watching the whirling black funnel some two miles away. It was slowly advancing towards the middle of the river, its tip sinking closer and closer to the water.

"Look at the water below it!" cried Tom suddenly.

The surface of the river just under the funnel was churned into tumultuous foam. Then a terrifying thing happened. Out of the boiling river rose a cone of whirling, yeasty water to coming directly down the middle of the river and we are right in its path. We've got to get out of the way!" Ellis's face was white. "What can we do?" he asked shakily.

Tom's answer was to jump to the tool box, snatch out two heavy wrenches and hand one to Ellis. "Knock away these supports!" he cried. "We've got to make a sail. There comes the wind."

The canvas roof of the cockpit was stretched on an iron frame. This frame was attached at one end to the cabin's roof and was supported over the cockpit by four vertical rods screwed to the gunwale. A few vigorous blows at the bottom of each upright were enough to tear the screws loose from the wood.

"Get a rope!" shouted Tom. "Hurry!"

Ellis sprang for the bow, unclasping his knife. He cut the painter loose and took it aft. As he went he shot a glance up the river.

Leaping and rolling, the Sea Gull at last got the wind astern again.

The waterspout had traveled nearly half the distance to the boat and loomed huge and menacing. Its base looked like a small hill of wildly churning water. The whirling column continued to lean down stream.

The rotary motion of the spout was now clearly visible and the murky air was filled with a vibrant humming as though there were a giant top spinning nearby.

"Tie it to the stern," cried Tom, and as Ellis made one end of the rope fast to a cleat, Tom tied the other end to the edge of the roof just above.

"Now, help me bend up the roof!" shouted Tom. Beginning at the stern they moved towards the cabin, thrusting up on the frame of the roof as they went, so that it was bent up at right angles to the cabin roof to which it was fastened.

For an instant it looked as if the Sea Gull would capsize as the now heavy wind struck this curious sail. But she righted herself and Ellis sprang to the tiller and brought her around until the wind was directly astern. In a moment she was bucking through the waves at right angles to the course of the spout.

But the whirling monster was speeding down the river faster and faster and filled their ears with its vibrant roaring. A little awing from its course and it would hit them.

"Can we make it, Tom?" cried Ellis, as he strained at the tiller.

Tom, gripping the gunwale of the tossing boat, estimated the chances. "The center will miss us," he shouted, "but we may get caught in the whirlpool and drawn in."

They stared speechless at the column's shaft of spumy water, revolving with the vicious roar of concentrated power. Then for an instant the leaning top hung almost over them. But the lower end of the column slipped by astern, less than a hundred feet away. The next moment the Sea Gull was tossed high on the heaped waters and staggered in a smother of foam as the rim of the spout's base struck her.

The wind reversed at the same time and blew fiercely in almost the opposite direction. The boat seemed about to split as the swirling water gripped her hull and the wind tore at her awkward sail. Buckets of water slipped over her gunwale. Tom grabbed a pail and began to bail frantically. Ellis exerted all his skill and strength at the tiller.

Leaping and rolling, the Sea Gull at last got the wind astern again and was able to make way against the current clutching at her keel. As she slid out of the rim of the vortex the boys saw that they had been whirled half around the circle and were now directly in the path the spout had taken. Weak and wordless they watched the spout as it sped down the river.

But as they sailed slowly towards the shore before the diminishing wind, Ellis spoke.

"Well, Tom," he said, "maybe you don't know much about boats, but you've got a head on you all right. That sail was a great idea. I would never have thought of it."

He added, grinning: "Wonder where we'd be now if it hadn't been for the sail? On the bottom of the river or lost up in the clouds somewhere?"

THE JUNIOR COOK

COOKIE TARTS FOR TEA

Mix old-fashioned cookie dough as follows:

2 cupsful sugar,

2 eggs,

1 teaspoonful vanilla

1 cupful fat,

1 teaspoonful salt

3/4 cupful sour milk to which is added 1 level teaspoonful soda.

Flour to make a thick dough.

Divide into four parts and roll only one part at a time. Cookies are ruined if the dough is handled too much or is too stiff.

Roll out and cut into 2 and 1/2 or 3 inch cookies.

Put onto a greased cookie pan.

Drop one teaspoonful of jam on the center of each cookie.

Cover jam with a second dough cookie and press gently at the edges.

Bake in a moderate oven till dainty brown.

Take from pan with a spatula.

Any other kind of thick, rich jam may be used if you haven't any fig.

These sandwich cookies are a delicious change for tea or for a school lunch box.

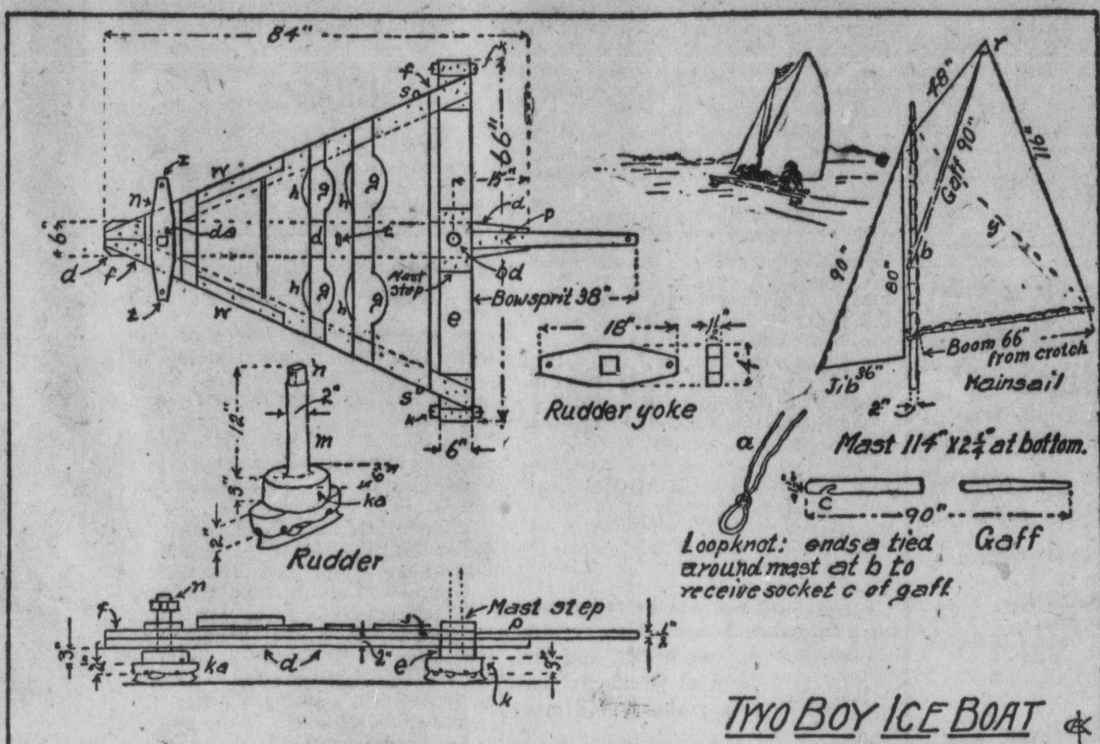

THE boy who is old enough to handle an ice boat would rather make one with his chum than to work alone, hence this ice boat is planned to make it possible for two boys who live by the lake shore to make and enjoy one together.

First cut the keel d and the transom e to the required dimensions and bore the 2" hole in each to receive the mast for these pieces are to be spiked together and the spikes may destroy the bit if the hole is bored afterward. Be sure the holes exactly coincide or the mast will not fit as it should.

The wales f should be strongly fastened and the floor laid. Build the mast step above the transom as in-dedicated and bore the hole for the rudder at da, and for the mast at db. Cut the foot holes g and trim the edges of the boards at h to allow the heel to reach the foot holes g.

The HANDY BOY AT HOME

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, PLYMOUTH, N.H.

Prepare two 3" skate blocks k and one 2" skate block ka by making the bottom of the block to resemble the form of the sole of a shoe and the clamps of the skate fitted to them and the fastening reinforced by the use of screws to hold the skates more rigidly. Trim the rudder post m and fasten the rudder block ka firmly to it with spikes. Make and fit the rudder yoke as shown at n. Fasten the 3" skate blocks k under the ends of the transom, using lag screws or spikes as they must be held rigidly.

In making the sails it will not be necessary to make the jib though it will aid in making for speed and for steadiness in sailing; if one is made, the bowsprit must be fastened to the forward end of the keel as shown at p. Select pieces for the mast from straight spruce or other strong light wood; make the boom from a straight branch with a crotch to fit around the mast and a straight piece for a gaff. The sails may be made of any strong cloth; cotton drilling or light canvas is the best, but burlap will allow the boys to have so much fun that they will be well satisfied with it. Lay the sails out on the floor and there will be little trouble in making them. A piece of strong cord should be sewed into the edge of the mainsail at the edges where it is fastened to the mast and boom, and upon the edge of the jib which is to be fastened to the stay. A three cornered piece of sail cloth should be strongly sewed to the top and back of the peak of the mainsail at r to receive the top end of the gaff. If desired, the gaff may be dispensed with and a leg of mutton sail, as indicated by the dotted line y may be made instead. If the wind is ever too strong the gaff may be taken out and the peak of the sail will drop to the dotted line which reduces the sail area nearly one-half.

Place an eye bolt or heavy spike at a to hold the back stays which extend from the top of the mast and strengthen it against the forward push of the mainsail and the pull of the fore stay which carries the jib. Place a heavy eye bolt at t to receive the sheet or rope which controls the mainsail, and is fastened to the main boom about 42" from the crotch.

Nail two pieces at w to give the steersman a brace in steering. Put tiller ropes in the rudder yoke at z, or make a tiller running fore and aft, if one is to sail alone and all that is needed is a broad expanse of smooth ice, a sunny, frosty day and a fresh breeze from a favorable direction, and we are ready for the most exhilarating sport the northern winter offers.

The FRILLED LIZARD

YOU may think from my picture, that I'm trying to dance the Highland fling, or some of the new jazz dances, but I'm not. This is just my way of running when I get in a big hurry. It is a funny habit for a lizard, and not a very graceful one, but when I wish to go somewhere, and go quickly, I just naturally rise up on my hind legs, and run just as you do, using my front legs as arms to keep my balance. It is such an unexpected way for a four-legged creature to run, that when I get in that position, and go toddling away, people just stand stock still, and gaze with open-mouthed astonishment. I may not look very graceful in the picture, but I sure am moving, and you want to remember that.

People that give names to the animals, birds and reptiles, call me the Frilled Lizard, on account of the big, showy collar or cape that I wear. It is a thin skin that stands out around my head, for all the world like those queen Elizabeth used to wear, if you are to believe the pictures of that high tempered lady. I can either wear it standing up stiff and starched, or I can fold it up like an umbrella and wear it in pleats down my back. Most of the time I wear it that way, and you would hardly notice it at all, but if anything frightens me, or if I get real good and mad, I give it a sudden flit, and it stands out like a great ruff, and they tell me a very frightful appearance. I often frighten away dogs and other enemies that way, and it surprises them so much, that generally they go on about their business and let me alone.

I was Leaving The Photographer When This Picture Was Taken

I am about two feet long, and when my collar is spread it is something like nine inches across, so you can imagine what a fearsome looking creature I must be. My skin is scaly, and of a brownish-gray with darker spots and stripes, but this splendid collar is bright yellow, almost orange, with crimson spots here and there, and it is notched or frilled around the edges. It is funny, but in our family the men folks have bigger and finer collars than the ladies—just the opposite to the way it is in your family. You must not get it in your head that I always walk on two feet, for I don't. It is only when I am traveling over bare, level ground, that I walk upright as you do. At other times I crawl just like any other lizard, and when I climb a tree I use all four feet, and could use more if I had them. I don't let my tail drag when I do my two-footed stunts, but carry it sticking up in the air as high as I can hold it, and that makes me look even more ridiculous. As it is generally pretty warm where we live, we don't have to bother about nests or anything of that kind, but we live out in the open all the time, and when it rains too hard, we crawl under a limb, and cling there until it is over. We love to bask in the hot sunshine, and doze the time away. When hungry, all we have to do is to catch and eat some of the many insects around, so you see life with us is a pleasant, uneventful one. Eating and sleeping are about the only amusements we have, but from our way of looking at it, that's as much fun as going to a picture show. One branch of our family eat nothing but a certain kind of ants, the kind that do so much damage when they get into houses, and in this way, they make themselves very useful to the people who live in our country. If good and hungry one of them can eat a thousand or so of these smelly, black ants at one meal. Take me all together, I suppose I must be one of the queerest lizards that there is, and if you should care to see me at home, you will have to buy a ticket on one of the steamship lines, and sail and sail until you are clear around on the other side of the world, and then you must stop off at Australia, which is about as queer a country as I am a lizard. Many things there seem to be all topsyturvy, and different from things in other parts of the world. So maybe I'm queer, because I live in such a queer country.

Dog Stories

WHERE is the boy who does not love dogs? Here are a few little stories for the boy or girl who delights in a pet.

Lion was a big black dog, whose master used to send him to the post-office every morning for his letters.

When the clerk saw the shaggy head at the window he would put the letters in Lion's mouth and away the dog would trot never losing a piece of mail. One day when coming home from the postoffice he saw a piece of cake on the side walk. Now Lion was very fond of cake and he was very hungry; but if he put the letters down someone might run off with them, for he was on a busy street. The shaggy head was still for a minute, indicating deep thought. Then Lion dropped the letters carefully upon the pavement, placed one big paw upon them and ate the cake with evident relish and enjoyment.

In the same street there lived another dog who did not share Lion's popularity. The owner of the dog had a little girl who taught Prince to carry her doll. Prince became so fond of the doll that he would snatch it up and carry it to his kennel where he would lie down beside it. The other little girls in the neighborhood at first thought this was fun and they would

As soon as mother shut the door the pig that stayed at home.

To occupy himself, about the house began to roam.

He'd always wanted to find out what made that funny noise

Up in the loft when he was in his bed like other boys.

The ladder soon was gotten and the trap-door flung aside;

But when he looked into the room from fright he nearly died.

A bird of monstrous size, it seemed to him, with giant claws,

Came rushing at his head and screamed and snapped resounding jaws!

Of course, he quickly toppled from the ladder with a howl—

The silly little pig to be so frightened by an owl!

ask the dog's owner: "Please may your dog come and take my doll for a walk?" Alas, now Prince snatches the dolls from the little mothers and runs off to his kennel. He never harms them, carrying them by their clothes. One day he brought four dolls home. Prince is no longer a favorite. His reputation as a friend of the children is gone. He does not wait to be asked to take Miss Dolly walking, but off he runs with her without the owner's consent.

Colonel William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), used to tell of a dog that traveled with his shows, and he would say that it was the most ill tempered beast in the world, and no wonder! He had good reasons for his bad humors, don't you think? He slept in the ticket wagon. Every night before he was shut up the ticket seller gave him a bone, which the dog promptly concealed in a hole which he dug underneath the wagon. Then the dog went to bed, probably dreaming of the lovely bone that he would find in the hole the next morning, and never realizing that while he slept the ticket wagon was rolling over the road to a new stop. The next morning when the dog went out to find his bone it was gone. Was he mad? He thought someone had stolen his precious bone and his temper became so ugly that it would not be safe to go near him for several hours. Sometimes the show would stay in one place for several days and then, of course, the dog would find his buried bones the next morning. That dog planted bones all over the country and the greater part of Europe and he lost ninety-nine out of every hundred!

Maybe So and Perhaps

FIRST Maybe-So and then Perhaps

Take turns in setting cunning traps

To catch me when I think I can

"Get by" with some particular plan.

No matter what it is, I find

The path to reach it simply lined,

Like pantry-shelf where mice cavort,

With traps of words of every sort.

"Say, brother, can't you get away

Somewhat from work in time today

To see the game? It won't be slow!"

Of course he answers: "Maybe so."

"Hey, sister, if you want to see

A jolly time, just come with me!

Now can't you leave the sums and maps

A little while!" she sighs, "Perhaps."

"Oh, mother, don't you think tonight,

"Twill never rain, the weather's bright;

That to the movies we might go?"

Now listen! Hear it? "Maybe so."

"And if you can, and have the change

(You will, or 'twould be mighty strange),

Let's get two sodas with those caps

Of creamy foam—what say?" "Perhaps."

"Oh, my, I wish some one would speak

In good plain English for a week!

Why can't they answer yes or no,

Instead of that old Maybe-So?

Why, even Dad won't talk right out,

But leaves a chap in awful doubt.

I'd rather get a dozen raps

Most anywhere than that Perhaps!

SANTA ANA BOY MAY REPRESENT COAST
COLLEGE IN BIG EASTERN RELAY RACE

Coch Pipal at Occidental Grooming John Spangler and Three Other Runners for Philadelphia Speed Carnival to Be Held On April 28 and 29

Indications today were that Santa Ana probably will be represented in the University of Pennsylvania relay carnival to be staged at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, April 28 and 29. John Spangler, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Spangler, 623 North Ross street, a student at Occidental university, with three other students from the university probably will make the trip east to compete in the annual event.

Coch Pipal, who has charge of athletics at Occidental, is grooming Spangler, Johnny Powers, Phillip Ellsworth and Art Gary with the plan in view of sending them east. Coach Pipal believes these youngsters will stand better than an even chance of coping first honors in the Class B four-man, one mile relay.

Spangler is capable of running 440 yards in close to 50 seconds and Powers can make the distance in about the same time. Gary can also keep up a stiff pace for the long grind and Ellsworth can negotiate the distance in about 62.

Pipal is working steadily with Spangler with a view of seeing John clip a second or so from the 50 second mark.

Spangler was one of the leading point winners for Poly when a student here. During his high school days he was a whiz over any distance up to 440 and Pipal expects to improve on his running while at Occidental.

HUNT FANS PRAISE
NEW DEER HEAD ON SHOW AT WALKERS'

What local hunters claim to be the best deer head ever placed on display here is now in one of the show windows at Vic Walker's store. The head is that of a five point buck killed by George S. Briggs, 644 North Broadway, during his recent hunt in Arizona. The head has been inspected by a number of hunters and they are unanimous in the opinion that it is the best they have ever seen.

Among other trophies recently put on display at Walkers is a mountain lion hide and also another deer head. These belong to S. C. Cherry and were also secured in Arizona.

L. A. MAN MAY BUY
OAKLAND FRANCHISE

(United Press Leased Wire) LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—In response to a telegram from Oakland intimating that the Pacific Coast league franchise there was for sale, Charles Lockhart, wealthy Los Angeles baseball man, will leave for the Northern city tonight. He will be accompanied by Ray Stull, an auditor.

Lockhart is employed by William Wrigley as business manager of the Los Angeles club but has been anxious to break into the game as an owner. He is said to be worth more than $100,000.

"I have been given to understand that the Oakland club is for sale," he said today. "I am taking an auditor with me so that I will be prepared to go over the books at once if Mr. Ewing, the present owner, is willing to talk business."

Lockhart and Ewing discussed the deal at the recent Pacific Coast meeting and Ewing said he would consider his offer.

HERE'S SOME INSIDE STUFF ON WHAT
GRIDIRON MEN HAVE TO SAY IN GAME

By HENRY L. FARRELL

United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—When two speeding figures crash into each other on the gridiron, go down with a rocking thud and come up glaring at each other, the stands often wonder—"What are they saying to each other?"

Because they are the only ones close to play, officials at the big games are the little private audiences for the interesting bits of by-play on the gridiron and the diamond.

Several interesting stories are told by officials of happenings during the big football games last fall.

Stan Keck, captain of the Princeton football team and All-American tackle of 1920 was out in the middle-west last summer and someone told him he would have a job when he faced Charley McGuire, star tackle of the Chicago team.

According to the story, Keck said: "He may be a star out here, but he wouldn't last five minutes in the east."

No one who knows Keck believes he ever made such a statement, but it is told nevertheless and it adds greater interest to the story told of the meeting between Keck and McGuire in the Princeton-Chicago game.

Keck and McGuire were playing opposite each other. To every one's surprise, Quarterback Romney shot the first of Chicago's assaults at Keck and the play went through. Several more gains were made through the Princeton star. Keck finally was taken far out on a particularly hard smash and when they lined up again, McGuire said to him: "You'd better get on your toes and play ball or the coach'll send Keck in."

Another one has to do with the Yale-Harvard game. Buell got away for his sensational 60 yard run and was thrown by O'Hearn with terrific force, on Yale's 15-yard line. The umpire rushed to the prostrate pair and leaned over Buell with:

"Are you hurt? How do you feel?" Buell looked up and with what little breath was left replied:

"I'm not hurt, just a—disappointed."

Ralph Gilroy, Princeton's brilliant defensive back and captain-elect of the 1922 eleven, has the reputation of being one of the toughest players in the game. In every hard tackle, under every line smash, he always comes up.

The midshipmen from Annapolis play hard football. In the Princeton-Navy game Gilroy charged into one of the Middy backs, brought him down and came up with a pretty shiner under his eye.

The referee gave the eye the once over and yelled—"Time out, Princeton!"

Gilroy moving back to his position retorted:

"Time out, hell! This isn't your party! Let's go!"

Newport Beach added points to its percentage figures which head the list by defeating San Juan Capistrano 9 to 5. The Harbor lads had it on the Missionaries all the time, and copped the decision easily.

El Toro made an attempt to leave the bottom position by defeating Mercantile, next to low in the league. The game was close, and the El Toros won only by a single point.

POLY MAY GET BIG
TRACK, FIELD MEET

C. I. F. Committee Coming Here Wednesday to Inspect Local Field

Poly high school athletic field probably will be the scene of the Southern California high school track and field championships to be staged April 22. The choice rests between the local field and the delegation of California Interscholastic federation officials are coming to Santa Ana Wednesday to look over the situation.

It is necessary for the field staging the meet to have a 220 yard straightaway, a fast track and ample bleacher accommodations for the crowd. Poly boasts all of these and local officials are confident Santa Ana will be selected. The committee coming here is composed of President J. F. Malcolm, of San Juan Capistrano; Seth F. Van Patten, of Los Angeles, in charge of Southern California championships; Secretary Green, of Hollywood; Tommy David, of Lincoln high school, Los Angeles; and Coach Hamilton, Harvard Military academy.

Members of the C. I. F. have expressed a preference for Santa Ana field and Poly track fans expect the committee to put the stamp of approval on the local track and field.

At the meeting of C. I. F. officials held in Los Angeles Saturday it was decided that only point winners in sectional meets will be allowed to take part in the Southern California meet. Another decision made by the officials and over which Los Angeles fans are raving is that under which San Diego, a free lance school, will be allowed to take part in the Los Angeles city meet.

Los Angeles fans do not cherish the idea. It goes against the grain among Los Angeles fans when they think of San Diego possibly being the winner of their city track and field meet.

HUNTINGTON BEACH
WINS FROM TUSTIN

Huntington Beach buried the Knights of Pythias from Tustin at the seaside grounds yesterday afternoon, 10 to 1. The visitors failed to get under way, while the oil lads continually drove the ball all around the grounds.

Things started out well in the first, each aggregation scoring once. There ended Tustin's success, for after that not a man bearing the Knights colors negotiated the four sections of the diamond.

Tyrell of Huntington Beach knocked out a homer and received a shining silver dollar from an admiring fan. He cracked out another which allowed him to complete the circuit, but a technicality robbed him of the credit of it.

Duhart and Aright completed a pretty double in the fifth.

The score by innings:

SANTA MONICA NINE
DEFEATS TUSTINITES

Teams Play Wozy Game In Which Errors Almost Equal Base Hits

In a closely played baseball game, replete with errors and bone plays, Santa Monica romped over Harry Kiser's Tustinites, on the Irvine boulevard field yesterday afternoon, 8 to 1.

Totals in the error column greatly exceeded those in any other row. Tustin led in hits with twelve, but his winners failed to play a faultless game, running up a total of eight. Lanfranco of Tustin allowed twelve hits, while Russell of the Saints gave nine.

Standing a flaming beacon among a darkness of poor plays was Coffman's work in center field. He went through the entire game without an error, and his stellar performance in preventing a runner from reaching home was noteworthy. Coffman nabbed a long fly in deep center, and heaved the pellet back to the plate in time to catch the runner.

Russell fanned six men, while Lanfranco whiffed but three. Next week San Fernando is to be entertained on the Irvine field.

GROVE WINS CLOSE
ONE FROM RANCHERS

A close play in the last of the ninth, lost the county baseball game for the San Joaquin Fruit ranch there yesterday, Garden Grove winning 3 to 6.

In spite of an evident lack of practice the game was well played throughout. Spectators who witnessed the affair were almost unanimous in the opinion that not before in league affairs has so interesting and cleanly contested a game been played.

San Joaquin scored a couple in the second. The Gardners evened it up in the third, and in the fourth the tie remained unbroken when each scored a unit. No scores resulted in either the fifth or sixth. In the lucky seventh Dame Fortune rested on the banners of both teams, each scoring three apiece.

The eighth saw the Garden Grove team breaking away with a brace of runs. Came the ninth, and Garden Grove was held scoreless. Bostillos and Morales were on second and third. An attempted trick play, assisted by a fumble on the part of the catcher nearly evened things up, but Morales failed to move fast enough, and Garden Grove won.

Brown excelled for San Joaquin, with a homer in the seventh, when he scored two men. He also negotiated a circus catch of a foul, leaping a five foot ditch and spearing the horsehide.

—To suppose, that ALFALFA which grows, with roots ten feet in the ground, should be overcome, and completely undone by BERMUDA GRASS where'er it is found? NOTICE INVITING BIDS

EVENING SALUTATION

"Valor consists in the power of self-recovery."

LET THERE BE LIGHT!

Literally a brilliant object lesson in the social and economic value of first-class public improvements was the delight of the general public with the ornamental lighting system on North Main street, which was in operation for the first time Saturday night.

Few things are more simply beautiful or beautifully simple than light. This is both spiritually and physically true. We have the Master's word for it that those who "love darkness rather than light" are under Divine displeasure. So the North Main street property owners who are paying most of the bill, and the general public who are paying part of it, are to be congratulated upon their contribution to the general welfare of the community.

In a merely material sense the North Main street lights are a paying investment. They enhance the market value of every piece of property in the city and especially of the properties immediately adjacent to North Main street.

Already a movement is under way for the lighting of Broadway. It ought to be successful. The City and the Edison company should strain a point, if necessary, to give the Broadway property owners the necessary co-operation. With Main street and Broadway beautifully lighted, and the new subdivisions on Orange avenue soon to follow suit, the slogan "Let there be more light!" would soon be heard throughout the entire city.

NEED NO MORE SALOME

Light is thrown on the current trend of American morals by the attitude of Chicago to "Salome." It may be remembered what a row the operatic version of Oscar Wilde's famous work aroused 11 years ago. It was driven from the musical stage, in Chicago and elsewhere, although its most sensational feature, the "Salome Dance," survived for a while in various forms.

Recently the Chicago Opera Company undertook to revive the opera. A storm of protest has compelled Mary Garden, the director, to abandon it, although she confesses that it is her own favorite. Mary insists that the opera is art, not immorality, but Chicago patrons of grand opera do not agree with her. And Chicago's morals are probably no more sensitive than the rest of the country's. At least there is no demand for Salome heard anywhere else.

From recent comment on the "degeneracy" of American morals, it might have been supposed that the public would welcome the return of Salome. Often, as Longfellow observed, "things are not what they seem." There is probably more fundamental morality and modesty left than the scandalized critics have imagined. Certainly, whatever relation and debasement there may have been in the last two or three years, the present tendency is markedly toward clean living and clean entertainment.

A NATIONAL ENTERPRISE

The recommendation to Congress of the St. Lawrence deep waterway plan by the international commission has put this proposal squarely before the country for action. The response seems to be almost unanimously favorable. The West and South are inclined to support it in spite of the fact that it is regarded as primarily a Middle West project. They recognize that any such constructive national undertaking benefits the whole country directly or indirectly. As the Rocky Mountain News remarks, nearly all the opposition comes from New York. The western and southern states probably feel, too, that if the federal government once undertakes any such constructive enterprise in any section of the country, it will be more inclined thereafter to do big things for the development of other sections.

The general approval is easily understood, in view of the commission's report that the whole cost of the project, about as much as that of the Panama Canal, to be divided between the United States and Canada, can be regained by the sale of waterpower developed incidentally. The chief benefits promised are:

The stimulation of agriculture and industry in the whole region lying between the Appalachian range and the Rockies, by the lowering of export freight charges;

Relief of congested eastern transportation, benefitting alike shippers and consumers and easing the burden of the railroads;

Relieving the coal shortage and conserving the coal supply, through the creation of nearly 1,500,000 horsepower in hydro-electric plants;

Promoting the friendship of the United States and Canada through helpful co-operation on a mutually beneficial project.

These are reasons that seem likely to prove effective with Congress.

A SERVICE FOR HOOVER

If plans for the economic conference at Genoa go on, it is reported that a delegation headed by Herbert Hoover may be sent to represent America.

There is a very general feeling in this country that the great need in Europe is the reduction of standing armies and the return of a corresponding number of men, who now represent only a great burden of expense, to productive labor in their own communities.

In addition to this, Mr. Hoover thinks the rehabilitation of Europe depends upon four steps, which are:

"Balancing of budgets by the various continental governments; reconstruction and reformation of national currencies, involving the stoppage of the presses turning out paper money; levying of increased taxes, and recognition of the necessary connection between the economic recovery of Europe generally and the economic recovery of Germany."

It is hard to say whether, if the conference is called at Genoa, France will subscribe to all the steps suggested, but the fact remains that they are the essentials to European recovery. It may be that, because of the esteem in which he is held abroad, Mr. Hoover might be able to do some effective missionary work in the matter.

REALITY IN IRELAND

Freedom in Ireland is a reality. The Irish are governing themselves, with the acquiescence of the English.

The British have moved out of Dublin Castle, ancient stronghold and visible symbol of foreign oppression, and the Irish have moved in. The British army is evacuating Ireland, and its place is being taken by Irish police troops. Preparations are going forward peacefully and speedily for setting up the new government of the Irish Free State, and the constructive work of this momentous transition is being done by the Irish themselves.

Sinn Fein government turns into Provisional Government under Arthur Griffith, and Provisional Government will soon merge into the permanent dominion government provided by the London treaty.

Here is an accomplished fact, for the whole world to witness. The regrettable thing is that a small group of Irish leaders, headed by De Valera, refuse to see or admit the evidence of their own eyes, minimizing the blessings gained and holding out stubbornly for an impossible dream.

Fortunately the bulk of the Irish people recognize the immense benefits of the new regime, and are happy in them.

Statesmen or Politicians

The San Francisco Bulletin diverts its readers with a column editorial entitled "This Country Has a Crying Need of Statesmen in Place of Politicians," which confirms once more the cynic's judgment that a statesman is a man that agrees with you and a politician is one that differs. Then it says:

The neglect of politics in the United States, except at election times, threatens to become a serious menace to the welfare of the country. Never was there more urgent need of statesmen. We are rapidly approaching the time when the dearth of thinking lawmakers and intelligent administrators may produce a crisis in the national life.

The Bulletin has just missed the point. We have neglected politics, in the United States, it is true. If we had more knowledge and understanding of politics, we would have more politicians, of the kind that agree with us as well as those that differ with us. On that we would have to take a chance. But the cure for too much politics is more of it. And the most pleasing constituency to great statesmen would be voters who knew enough about public life to judge of whether their politicians or "statesmen" were serving them well.

The Road to Success

San Bernardino Sun
Down in Nashville, Tenn., is a Negro, 57 years old, who runs an elevator in a department store. Amusing himself during his leisure hours by manipulating some old wire from baled hay, he conceived the idea of fashioning it into a rat trap. The work was so well that he won a rat-catching competition held by the Commercial Club of that city. Now he has been offered $25,000 cash for the patent rights, or $5,000 down and five cents royalty on every rat sold.

All of this goes to prove the truth of the epigram of Elbert Hubbard, often incorrectly attributed to Emerson:

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

Conditions were not propitious for the attainment of even a modest fortune by the Nashville Negro. Having reached the age of 57 without having advanced to any higher position than that of an elevator operator, he generally would have been regarded as one to whom no more opportunities would come.

The story of his case should be an inspiration to ambitious persons to whom success has not come. When one considers the countless things used by the human race, and the countless things in which mankind is interested, it seems a though nearly every person, if he chose wisely and applied himself to it, could effect an improvement on at least one of that vast number and so win the world's homage.

Laws and Enforcement

Nevada City Union
Fifteen thousand new laws are put upon statute-books in the United States every year, it is estimated. This is too many. The tendency to legislate too much to enact large numbers of laws, in many instances of very poor quality—is an evil in this country.

There comes from Chicago announcement that only one murderer in forty-four in that city pays the death penalty. And yet the law of that state prescribes death as the punishment for murder. Only one in four murderers in that state are even indicted. Similar bad latitudes—although perhaps not quite so glaring in degree exist in other states.

Now, what Illinois needs, and what other states need, is not more laws on the books of statutes, but a far more rigid and successful enforcement of the laws they already have. Illinois or any other state might pass laws providing for burning murderers at the stake. But unless such laws were enforced with vigor they soon would cease to have terrors for murderers or potential murderers. Cunning criminals look upon loosely-enforced laws as something with which to gamble. If, for example, only one murderer in forty-four in Illinois is put to death, the shrewd criminal, bent upon murder, takes a gambling chance of being one of the forty-three who escape the extreme penalty. The law has terrors for the criminal only when its operations against each and every guilty one are sure, and when its penalties are exemplarily severe.

Today's Talk

by George Matthew Adams

TRUE BLUE

It takes a MAN to stick through. If I had the choice between brains and loyalty, I would choose loyalty every time.

There is something about loyalty that makes me think of the rainbow—it contains all the colors of character.

It seems to be a primary virtue, too. The mother has it to the nth degree. The dumb dog looks honestly into your face and you know that he would risk his life for you at the drop of the hat.

A friend honored me by dedicating his book to me once and this is a line taken from that piece of thoughtfulness: "He sticks to his friends through thick and thin." Whenever I think of that line, I think of my unworthiness as a friend, yet it inspires me to try to be one more than ever.

I have been highly favored with true blue friends. Their loyalty to me is more than any amount of fame or wealth that could ever come to me. You can't buy loyalty. It never sells out!

Loyalty always brings happiness—and frequently the other things you most desire.

Loyalty is the spring in your heart that never fails to quench the thirst of your soul. It even flows on into Eternity.

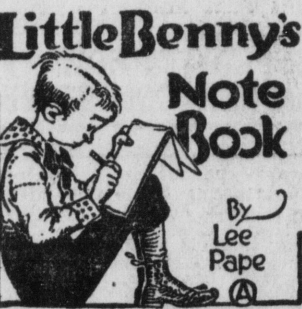

It's a homely virtue. And you hear a great deal about it—but those possessing it express it without talking about it.

And remember this, it's the true blueness IN you that attracts and holds the loyalty that comes TO you.

When they took the Man of the Cross down from where they had crucified Him, it was the Mother who attended Him first, and another woman whom He had befriended—loyal to the end. Judas was far removed, to where he could count the thirty pieces of silver he had received for his act of betrayal.

Your life will always be filled with moments of indecision. Sometimes it will be money, sometimes fame that will tempt you. But ask yourself first before you make your decision: Will it be a loyal thing to do—either to someone else or to myself?

Stay true blue!

Last night I had a fierce dream, dreaming a burler was in my room and he put everything in a grate big bag and then he stuck a pin in my football just out of meanness and then he pulled the pillow from underneath my head and put that in the bag too, and then he started to wawk up and down on top of me as hard as anything, me thinking, Owch, wat the heck.

Wich jest then I wook up and jest wen I started to feel glad it was only a dream I saw something moving around in the room looking like a man, me thinking, Holey smokes, there is one in here.

And I quick shut my eyes so he would think I was asleep in case he turned his flash lite on me all of a sudden in case he had a flash lite, and I thawt, I wonder if I cawfed or something I wonder if he'd get scared and run.

And I opened one eye about one third ways open to see if he was still there. Wich he was, and I tried to cawf and didn't on account of not trying hard enuff, and then I tried hard as anything to cawf a fierce cawf and cawfed a little one instead, and the man sed, O, your awake, are you?

Being pop, and I sed, O, G, is that you, pop?

Its me all rite, but wares my bed-room slippers. I cant find them high or low and your mother says you would put it.

There are weeks in the Winter in Norway when the sun only appears for a few hours.

CHAPTER 249

THE OTTER FAMILY

By Harvey Elliott

There is another large member of the Weasel family I want to tell you about. He is quite large, but so different from Cut-throat and the Fisher that you wouldn't know they belonged to the same class of animals. His name is the Otter. He is beautiful and graceful and gentle and is of a lovable disposition.

The Otter is over four feet long if you measure to the end of his tail. He has a beautiful brown fur which is so valuable that many are killed just for the fur. His head is small, his neck is long, his body is slender and his legs are short.

This animal makes his home on the bank of some deep mountain stream that is abounding in fish. Mrs. Otter digs a hollow place in the bank and lines her nest with grass. Three or four baby Otters are born late in the spring. The mother goes out at her front door, which is under the water, and catches fish for her food until the babies are big enough to eat, then she takes them down and they learn to catch fish for themselves.

The Otter is a great swimmer. He can see under water as well as a fish. He uses his web-like feet for oars to push him around and his flat tail guides him in the direction he wants to go.

When the baby Otters are first led down to the water, they are afraid, but the mother takes them on her back and swims around with them above water. Then she will duck them under and come back up again. She will keep this up till they begin to get used to the water, then she will turn over and dump them all in. The youngsters then have to paddle for themselves. If they have trouble getting out she will help them and see that none of them gets drowned.

The second day that Mother Otter took her family down to the water she let them all pile on her back and she took them out to the middle of the stream. Then she rolled clear over on her back and let every last one of them slide off, ker splash! Mother Otter then swam to the bank, and climbed up on a rock where she could watch the fun.

At first the little Otters spluttered and splashed for dear life. They thought they would drown, sure. But Mrs. Otter just let them splutter away. She wouldn't let them drown, of course, but wanted them to learn how to swim and they would learn quicker when left to themselves. It wasn't long till they were paddling around in the water with their noses out as easily as you please. After that day the little Otters were splashing around in the creek, chasing one another and grabbing at the fish most of their time.

UP TO DATE

In an East End school a mistress was reading to her class Shelly's Ode to a Skylark. To test the intelligence of her scholars, she asked if they could put into different words, expressing the same meaning, the line, "Hail to thee, blithe spirit—bird thou never wert."

An arm shot up from the back row. "Well, Johnny, let us hear how you would put it."

"Hi! cocky. You ain't no blinkin' bird."—London Tid-Bits.

Poland's New Ally

Literary Digest

Poland has a good friend on the western boundary of Germany in her ally, France, and now she makes up another on Germany's eastern border by the "accord" with Czechoslovakia says those writers who welcome the new arrangement as an important act in the solidification of Central Europe. Incidentally, Czechoslovakia is also bound up with Roumania and Jugoslavia in the Little Entente, which showed its "big stick" on the occasion of the recent air journey of Karl of Hungary. "In Czechoslovakia the news comes welcome, says the Gazette de Prague, because of the serious events in Hungary, the first of which was the opposition to treaty conditions affecting Burgenland, and the second the abortive monarchist attempt of Karl of Hungary and his adherents. The signing of the agreement at Prague on November 6th is taken as one more manifestation of the new spirit in European and in world politics which "tends to make sure the peaceful existence of national democracies and the peaceful development of free nations on the basis of reciprocal respect for rights determined by mutual understanding." The agreement was concluded by Constantine Skirmunt, Poland's foreign minister, and Dr. Eduard Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, and the Polish bureau of information (New York) summarizes the main points as follows:

"1. To guarantee to each other their territorial possessions, based on the treaties from which results the independence and organization of two countries.

"2. If one of the contracting parties is attacked by neighbors, the other one is bound to maintain friendly neutrality and allow free transit of war material.

"3. Czechoslovakia declares herself uninterested in the question of Eastern Galicia, and Poland declares herself uninterested in the question of Slovakia. Consequently, each party undertakes to dissolve any military formations or organizations on its territories, as well as to suppress all active propaganda intended to tear away any territory belonging to the other party. Neither state will tolerate on its territory any political or military organization directed against the integrity and safety of the other party.

"4. A commercial agreement has been arrived at.

"5. Both parties have agreed to submit any difficulties to arbitration, either by specially selected umpires or by the Arbitration Tribunal at The Hague.

"6. Neither state may enter an agreement to this agreement.

"7. The agreement is arranged for five years. Either government may terminate it after two years by giving six months' notice. Special arrangements have been made to settle all disputes between national majorities and minorities in those border districts which have a mixed Polish and Czechoslovakian population. This special commission has been set up may intervene in all affairs relating to national conditions, as regards schools, economic conditions, etc. The only remaining boundary dispute (a small one) between the two countries is to be settled by arbitration within six months."

The Polish official view of the new accord is presented by the Polish Foreign Minister Skirmunt. In a statement to the Prague Narodni Politika, in which he says:

"Poland and Czechoslovakia owe their new life to the same event and the same treaties of peace. Thus they have each the same task, which is to consolidate the new European situation and to maintain peace. This common aim, despite the difficulties of the first years, has enabled our reciprocal good-will to conclude this political accord, which gives us reason to hope for the solidifying and strengthening of our two countries in Central Europe."

A new era begins, remarks the Prague Ceskoslovenska Republika, and it is full of promise, "despite the skepticism that will inevitably declare itself here and there and despite the attempts that will be made from this side or that to damage it."

This daily adds:

"We believe that the work begun by the visit of Polish Minister Skirmunt will have lasting value. It is not the product of transient emotions, but of profound understanding of the needs of the two nations. This accord not only justifies joyous confidence in the future, but has a real importance in the present hour. In effect it is a clear refutation of all theories about the Balkanization of Central Europe."

The Prager Presse avers that public opinion not only in Poland and in Czechoslovakia, but wherever there is interest in the development of Central Europe, does not need the publication of the accord in order to appreciate its higher importance and meaning, and adds:

"The officials representing Poland and Czechoslovakia solemnly avow their purpose to devote themselves by common effort to the work of peace, and to the systematic reinforcement of the friendly bonds uniting the two countries. Everybody who understands the importance of the issues of the New Central Europe, which has been born of the Peace Treaties, will welcome this event with enthusiasm."

Those Starving Girls

Mr. A. C. Olney, State Superintendent of Secondary Education, has aroused some animated discussion by a recent statement that the high school girls of today are injuring their health and inviting tuberculosis by starving themselves in an effort to keep their figure sylph-like, as the present mode seems to demand.

The writer of this paragraph was graduated somewhere back in the mists of antiquity, from a high school of which A. C. Olney was at that time principal and Mr. Olney's attention is respectfully called to the fact that there were quite as many thin girls in the high schools then as there are today.

Be not so quick to criticize, you may not know or understand the reason for the faltering hand; Some things are hidden from your eyes.

—Edgar A. Guest.

There are several possible reasons for Mr. Olney's misapprehension. The girls of that far-off day wore voluminous skirts that were weighted with yards and yards of ruffles, and they barely cleared the ground from a foot to a yard at the back. What chance then had a mere man to judge of the thinness or the plumpness of the school-girl ankles? Collars not only clasped themselves snugly under the chin, but ran up under the ears in little points, with a torturing bit of feather-hose to hold them there. How could Mr. Olney tell how many self-assertive collarbones those iniquitous chokers concealed?
